Demand for Free Hand in Eastern Europe Discussed By Dictator and Advisers

Premier Chamberlain's Speech Is Pronounced "Purely Negative"; Armored Cruiser Is Sent to Danzig

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Berlin, Aug. 25—(Friday)—(AP)—Hitler and his most trusted advisers deliberated early today on the asserted right to a free hand in Eastern Europe in light of Germany's consultation and non-aggression pact with Soviet Russia and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's speech to the British House of Commons.

In authoritative quarters, Chamberlain's speech was pronounced "purely negative."
Only the ministers most directly involved surrounded Hitler at the conference which went into the early hours of the morning. They included among others Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels and Rudolf Hess, Hitler's deputy party leader.

High military officers also were present.
No Communiqué Expected
It was considered most unlikely that an official communiqué would be issued. Men, however, who were in constant touch with the chancellery, presented the following picture:

1. Albert Forster, now the chief executive of the baby state of Danzig, can do two things—first, declare that Danzig considers itself part of the Reich second, ask that this latest acquisition to the Reich be properly protected in view of the "encirclement" of Danzig by Polish troops.

2. Germany will not declare war on Poland. It will merely organize a punitive expedition to Poland to "establish law and order." One of the places that must be guarded is Upper Silesia with its rich zinc, copper and coal deposits. To guard these deposits the "police action" in Silesia must be so fast that the Poles won't have time to blow up or dynamite the mines.

3. After Chamberlain's speech the Premier and his advisers are more convinced than ever that the British and French will not fight.
Emphasis on Border Measures
From a military point of view, the emphasis is laid upon measures on the Polish border. There is a serious thought of any possibility of trouble from the west.

4. Preparations are going on as usual for the Tannenberg celebration next Sunday in East Prussia. This is done in the firm conviction that the "police action" will have been completed in time for the celebration to be held in perfect peace.

5. In order that Danzig, while waiting deliverance from Polish oppression, may not be unprotected, the armored cruiser "Schlesien" (Continued on Page Two)

Europe Has More Than 11,000,000 Men Under Arms

London, Aug. 24 (AP)—Europe had more than 11,000,000 men under arms tonight, not counting naval and air forces.
Here are the round numbers, a composite of estimates made by various sources:
Poland 1,000,000; France 2,000,000; Great Britain 600,000; Total 3,600,000.
Germany 2,000,000 to 2,500,000; Italy 1,300,000; Total 3,300,000 to 3,800,000.
Rumania 850,000; Turkey 300,000; Greece 200,000. (These countries have received pledges of aid from Britain and France.)
Other countries not committed:
Hungary 200,000; Spain 150,000; Yugoslavia 300,000; Bulgaria, Belgium, Baltic States, The Netherlands, Portugal and Switzerland 400,000; Soviet Russia 2,000,000.

CONVICTED IN FRAUD

Mayor Frank Hayes

Mayor Frank Hayes, 56, of Waterbury, Conn., and 19 co-defendants were convicted of conspiracy to defraud the city of more than $1,000,000 through fraudulent payments out of the treasury. Hayes, a former state lieutenant governor, was sentenced to serve ten to fifteen years in prison.

Nazi Leader Takes Charge of Danzig City Government

Wives and Families of Many Polish Officials Leave for Poland

Danzig, Aug. 23 (AP)—Danzig's Nazi leader, Albert Forster, took charge of the Free City government tonight while the population waited tensely for some settlement of its fate.

The senate voted to make him chief of state, taking precedence over Arthur Greiser, hitherto head of the government as its senate president.

The city was quiet tonight, but where men gathered there was a tendency to measure the future in days, if not hours.

Many foreigners hurried out. Wives and families of many Polish officials left for Poland.

Official assurance was given that no troops had marched across the east Prussian frontier, but it was not denied that thousands of German soldiers were quartered there.

The British consul general, E. H. S. Shepherd, advised British residents who could to leave, but said he was staying "until war breaks out, if it does."

Danzig officials announced that Poland had closed the border and that food shipments destined for Danzig had not been permitted to cross.

The closing of the border was denied by Polish officials here, but persons expected from Gdynia had not arrived late in the afternoon.

Forster will be saluted for the first time in his new position as "staats oberhaupt" (head of state) tomorrow when the German cruiser Schleswig Holstein, now used as a school ship, is due in Danzig harbor.

It was emphasized that Greiser's position as president of the senate will be retained. Forster, however, will have the last word on policy.

Cleveland, Aug. 24 (AP)—The suicide of the only person ever formally charged in Cleveland's "twelve-torso" slayings added another question mark tonight to the five-year investigation.

Frank Dolezal, 52, brawny Bohemian-born bricklayer accused of decapitating Mrs. Florence Polillo, hanged himself from a clothes hook with a ragged towel at county jail. Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnell said. Coroner S. R. Gerber returned a suicide verdict.

Deputy Sheriff Hugh Crawford found the accused man's limp body and cut him down. A fire department rescue squad worked over him for forty-five minutes before Dr. A. V. Fry pronounced him dead.

Pope Pleads with Heads of Nations To Settle Differences by Negotiations Rather Than by War; President Asks Emanuele To Use Influence To Prevent War

Castel Gandolfo, Aug. 24 (AP)—Pope Pius in a radio message broadcast throughout the world pleaded tonight with the heads of governments to settle their differences by negotiation rather than by war.

The pontiff, speaking with great feeling, delivered his message from his summer palace through the Vatican radio station. It was followed immediately by translations in the principal languages.

Coupling the ideas of peace and justice as he has done in all his peace appeals the holy father said: "It is with the force of reason and not that of arms that justice makes progress."

Then he added: "Conquests and empires which are not founded on justice are not blessed by God."

The Pope while recognizing that the dangers were "enormous" insisted there still was time to negotiate.

"Nothing is lost through peace; all may be lost through war," he urged. With him, the Pope said, were the hopes of "mothers whose hearts beat with ours and fathers who would have to abandon their families."

With him as well, he added, "was this old Europe which grew up in the Christian faith and genius, with us is all humanity which waits for bread and liberty and not for iron which kills and destroys."

The Holy Father observed, with sorrow in his voice, that "notwithstanding our repeated exhortations and the special interest we have shown the fears of a bloody international conflict are increasingly preoccupying."

"While the tension between spirits seems to have reached such a point as to cause concern lest the tremendous turbine of war be set in motion," said the Pope, "we direct our most hearty appeal to governments and peoples that they may set aside the threat of armed conflict by attempting to settle current differences by the only suitable means, and that is by reaching understandings."

Danzig officials announced that Poland had closed the border and that food shipments destined for Danzig had not been permitted to cross.

The closing of the border was denied by Polish officials here, but persons expected from Gdynia had not arrived late in the afternoon.

Forster will be saluted for the first time in his new position as "staats oberhaupt" (head of state) tomorrow when the German cruiser Schleswig Holstein, now used as a school ship, is due in Danzig harbor.

Deputy Sheriff Hugh Crawford found the accused man's limp body and cut him down. A fire department rescue squad worked over him for forty-five minutes before Dr. A. V. Fry pronounced him dead.

On two previous occasions, the sheriff said, Dolezal had attempted to end his life.

An original charge of murder against the suspect was reduced to manslaughter, and he was to have faced a grand jury investigation on the count Sept. 7.

On July 7, O'Donnell announced the suspect, after forty hours of questioning, confessed slaying Mrs. Polillo, a forty-two-year-old waitress listed as No. 3 among the "torso" victims.

Her decapitated body was found Jan. 23, 1936, in a vacant lot, but the head was never recovered.

France Rushes Preparations For Defense

Call of Reservists Proceeds Rapidly; Americans Told To Leave

By JOHN LLOYD

Paris, Aug. 24 (AP)—France rushed defense preparations tonight in fear the worst might come at any moment.

Officials told all in Paris whose presence was "not absolutely indispensable" to depart. The United States embassy advised Americans to leave France, and many were doing so.

Diplomatic circles reported communications with Poland had been disrupted since 5 p. m. (11 a. m. EST.)

(The Associated Press in London however reestablished communications with the Polish capital after several hours of interrupted service.)

Calling up of reservists proceeded rapidly. Vehicles of all sorts were commandeered. Emergency patrols guarded "danger areas" and a union government, embracing all save perhaps the Communists, was projected.

The government took full control of all private factories manufacturing war materials. Employees on vacation were ordered back to work. The managements were told they were under government orders.

Hopes that war could be avoided were still expressed, but pessimism was predominant. Official quarters felt that the only safe policy was to count on war and be ready for it.

Outstanding developments of the day, as judged here, were the elevation on the Danzig Nazi leader. (Continued on Page Two)

Poland's Limit Of Forebearance Under Discussion

Lord Halifax Entreats Hitler To Heed Pleas for Peace; Chamberlain Says Peril of War Imminent

By ELMER W. PETERSON

Warsaw, Aug. 24 (AP)—A sharp definition of Poland's "limit of forbearance" was believed in some quarters to be under consideration tonight as this war-born and war-threatened nation of thirty-five million people made itself completely ready for any fate.

Some of the reports envisaged a possible sharp warning from Poland to the "excited Free City of Danzig"—a warning which would state clearly and concisely what would be considered "unacceptable violation" of Polish rights.

There was a conviction in Polish circles generally that the climax of the European drama was being reached, and that the time had come, with all Europe alive and ready, to make Poland's position since more clear beyond doubt.

There was no confirmation here of reports that Foreign Minister Jozef Beck had been invited to Berchtesgaden by Adolf Hitler, and it was generally held that the Polish minister would not consider such an invitation.

Polish opinion, it was pointed out, would regard such a move as tantamount to yielding, and too reminiscent of the German procedure toward Austria and Czechoslovakia.

Poland Ready To Fight
Significance was seen, however, in conferences today between Foreign Minister Beck, British Ambassador Sir Howard Kennard and French Ambassador Leon Noel, at which, it was believed, the Polish position of the moment was definitely established.

Japs Will Pursue Isolation Policy

Tokyo, Aug. 25 (Friday)—The Japanese press hinted strongly today that Premier Baron Kichiro Hiranuma would resign shortly because of recent reversals in foreign policy.

Simultaneously the press took a sharper attitude toward Germany as a result of her non-aggression pact with Soviet Russia. The newspapers virtually agreed that the anti-Comintern pact binding Tokyo to Berlin and Rome was actually dead.

Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita told Japanese-Language newspapers yesterday that the nation's revised policy must be based on "independence without counting upon any other powers."

This was in keeping with a statement by a navy spokesman that the Army and Navy had agreed on the necessity of pursuing an independent international military policy, but would "cooperate with friendly powers as much as possible."

These declarations coincided with apparent increasing bitterness and disappointment over international developments, including the United States abrogation of the 1911 American Japanese Trade Treaty.

The deadlock in the British-Japanese conference on the Tientsin dispute, and the German-Russian Non-Aggression Pact.

A report that Foreign Minister Arita had instructed Kensuke Hiranouchi, Ambassador to Washington, to make representations against alleged reports by American authorities in North China that the Anti-British campaign there had resulted in harm to Americans was interpreted as possibly the first step in a revised policy.

Senator Nye Hits Foreign Policy Of Roosevelt

Says He Is Pursuing Course That Is Inviting U. S. into War

Ottawa, Ill., Aug. 24 (AP)—Senator Gerald P. Nye (R-N.D.), declared tonight President Roosevelt's foreign policy "finds an administration preaching a determination to keep this country out of war, but pursuing a course that can only be inviting ourselves to another war."

Senator Nye told a Republican rally in starred Rock State park "the Republican party must accept the challenge which the administration lays down, which would have us involve our country in the power politics of the world and forget or ignore serious problems at home."

The address was broadcast over a National Broadcasting Company network.

"Millions of American people believe the administration wants a neutrality law to help us keep out of war," Senator Nye said in a prepared address, "when, in fact, it really wants to do away with the all-important part of the law."

"The president has been demanding change in the law x x x in the name of a truer neutrality. He wants the change made in such a way as will let the law operate to favor those nations which have command of the sea in time of war, and can come and get what they want in the way of war supplies."

"That would be, as things stand now, England and France. It also means Japan. The law the administration wants is one that would favor one group of nations as against another group. And they want the people to accept that kind of law under the title of neutrality."

Senator Nye said the Roosevelt administration started to "drift from a strict 'keep out of war' policy when it saw itself failing miserably in its domestic policy."

once to Mussolini, asking at the same time for an audience with the King.

Hull Reads Message

Meanwhile, Hull gravely read the message to correspondents at the state department, and briefly answered questions. There had been no prior consultation with any other government, he said; copies had been sent to American representatives in contiguous countries; no copy was despatched specifically to the Berlin government.

In early afternoon, Mr. Roosevelt's special train arrived at Union Station here, and the chief executive lost no time in making for the White House where a conference with Hull and other departmental heads had been arranged, to deal principally with the safety of the estimated 50,000 American citizens now in Europe. These Americans include two members of his cabinet, Secretary Morgenthau and Postmaster General Farley.

The message itself called attention, first of all to the fact that another crisis had developed, which sharpened the responsibility of the heads of all nations "for the fate of their own people and indeed of humanity itself." Traditional friendship with Italy, and blood ties between millions of American citizens and the people of Italy, had led him, he said, to send his appeal to the Italian monarch.

"It is my belief and that of the American people," he said, "that your Majesty and your Majesty's government can greatly influence the averting of an outbreak of war."

"Any general war would cause to suffer all nations whether belligerent or neutral, whether victors or vanquished, and would clearly bring devastation to the peoples and perhaps to the governments of some nations most directly concerned."

Nations Have Right to Independence

America, the president continued, recognizes that smaller nations have a right to their continued independent existence. Acceptance of such a doctrine, he added, means peace because it removes "fear of aggression." The alternative, or efforts by the strong to dominate the weak, he said, "will lead not only to war but to long future years of oppression on the part of the victors and to rebellion on the part of the vanquished."

Then, he added:

"On April 14, last I suggested in essence an understanding that no armed forces should attack or invade the territory of any other independent nation, and that this being assured, discussions be undertaken to seek progressive relief from the burden of armaments and to open avenues of international trade including sources of raw materials necessary to the peaceful economic life of each nation."

"I said that in these discussions, the United States would gladly take part. And such peaceful conversations would make it wholly possible for governments other than the United States to enter into peaceful discussions of political or territorial problems in which they were concerned."

Message Less Vigorous

By comparison with the president's previous appeals—his communications to Hitler and Mussolini during the Sudeten crisis last September and his message of last April—today's communication struck most observers as much less vigorous.

This, however, was a reminder of the president's repeated statements rejecting the thesis that any ruler, or any people, possess the right to achieve their ends or objectives through the taking of action which will plunge countless millions of people into war and which will bring distress and suffering to every nation of the world, belligerent and neutral, when such ends and objectives, so far as they are just and reasonable, can be satisfied through processes of peaceful negotiation or by resort to judicial arbitration.

Both Poland and Germany being sovereign governments, it is understood, of course, that upon resort to any one of the alternatives I suggest, each nation will agree to accord complete respect to the independence and territorial integrity of the other.

I appeal to you in the name of the people of the United States, and I believe in the name of peace-loving men and women everywhere, to agree to the solution of the controversies existing between your government and that of Poland through the adoption of one of the alternative methods I have proposed. I need hardly reiterate that should the governments of Germany and of Poland be willing to solve their differences in the peaceful manner suggested, the government of the United States still stands prepared to contribute its share to the solution of the problems which are endangering world peace in the form set forth in my message of April 14.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

To President Moscicki:

"HIS EXCELLENCY

"IGNACE MOSCICKI

President of the Polish Republic

"Warsaw (Poland)

The manifest gravity of the existing crisis imposes an urgent obligation upon all to examine every possible means which might prevent the outbreak of general war.

With this in mind, I feel justified in suggesting that certain possible avenues of solution be considered.

The controversy between the government of Poland and the government of the German Reich might be made the subject of direct discussion between the two governments.

Second Avenue Suggested

Should this prove impossible or not feasible, a second avenue might be that of submission of the issues to arbitration.

A third method might be conciliation through a disinterested third party, in which case it would seem appropriate that the parties avail themselves of these services of one of the traditionally neutral states, or a disinterested republic of the western hemisphere wholly removed from the area and issues of the present crisis. Should you determine to attempt solution by any of these methods, you are assured of the earnest and complete sympathy of the United States and of its people. During the exploitation of these avenues, I appeal to you, as I have likewise appealed to the government of the German Reich, to agree to refrain from any positive act of hostility.

Nations Desire Peace

It is, I think, well known to you that speaking on behalf of the United States I have exerted and will continue to exert every influence in behalf of peace. The rank and file of the population of every nation, large and small, want peace. They do not seek military conquest. They recognize that disputes, claims, and counter claims will always arise from time to time between nations, but that all such controversies without exception can be solved by peaceful procedure if the will on both sides exists so to do.

I have addressed a communication in similar sense to the chancellor of the German Reich.

Albert Forster, to chief of state in the Free City and the peace appeals of President Roosevelt and Pope Pius.

The appeals were welcomed, but were conceded little chance of success. Announcement that Forster is now chief of the Free State of Danzig was viewed by commentators as creating a "fait accompli" (accomplished fact)—as having separated Danzig from the League of Nations control.

Five classes of reservists were streaming from all parts of the country to concentration centers.

Latest available estimates were that some 2,000,000 men were under arms in France and French territory. Troops in the south were moving in large numbers to the Italian border. The Maginot line, opposite Germany, has long been fully manned.

Sausage balloons were in the air on the French side of the German Frontier zone. From Nice, East to the Italian border along the Riviera, squads of black Senegalese sharpshooters guarded the coast, bridges and other vital points.

Thousands of French families already had left the capital. An organized large-scale exodus from Paris was planned in case war breaks out.

Premier Daladier announced that he would make a broadcast to the nation tomorrow night. The hour for it had not been set.

The result of Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop's conference with Adolf Hitler on returning from Moscow was awaited with anxiety. War or peace, it was believed, hinged on their decision.

Foreign military observers worked far into the night over maps and reports, keeping their governments advised on developments and possibilities.

Strong Exonerated In Fatal Shooting Of Stanley Wetherill

Bethesda, Md., Aug. 24 (AP)—William A. Strong, seventeen-year-old son of the chief of war plans division of the army general staff, was exonerated today in the fatal shooting of Stanley Wetherill, 17, son of an army officer.

Dr. C. E. Hawks, Montgomery county medical examiner, issued a certificate of accidental death.

Wetherill was shot while the two, close friends, were firing at targets. Strong said the pistol, an old dueling type of small caliber, discharged accidentally shortly after he had placed a single cartridge in the breach.

Stanley, son of Col. Richard Wetherill of the organized reserves attached to headquarters at the war department, died yesterday.

Brig. Gen. George V. Strong, William's father, was at the Plattsburg army maneuvers at the time of the accident.

that the failure of Congress to revise the neutrality act at the last session had left him without ammunition with which to fire another shot for peace.

In quarters close to the president, however, it was emphasized that Mr. Roosevelt had said several times he would call a special session when and if war actually breaks out, and if war actually breaks out, over by the government; that any premises may be entered and searched; and that judicial proceedings may be heard in secret.

From early morning there was an atmosphere of almost inevitable war about London. First the king broke his vacation at Balmoral Castle in Scotland and returned to London.

Chamberlain drove to Buckingham Palace to meet him and returned through anxious crowds to hold a special meeting of the cabinet.

An announcement by the directors of the Bank of England that the bank rate had been raised from two to four percent increased the tension, and then just before the House of Commons assembled Ambassador Kennedy issued his "get out while you can" statement to travelling Americans.

The House of Commons presented an unusual scene.

Every inch of space was taken. Ambassador Kennedy part of the time sat in an aisle. Several cabinet members were crowded off the front bench.

Chamberlain Cheered

There was little new in Chamberlain's methodical chronological account of the events of the past two weeks, but he set the mood of the speech early by declaring:

"The international position has steadily deteriorated until today we find ourselves confronted with the imminent peril of war."

Speaking in a hoarse voice, the premier condemned the German press for its violent anti-Polish campaign and for publishing "circumstantial accounts of alleged ill-treatment of Germans living in Poland."

The house cheered Chamberlain's observation that these newspaper accounts "bear a strong resemblance to similar allegations which were made last year in respect of the Sudeten Germans living in Czechoslovakia."

And he cheered again for praising the calm and restraint of the Polish leaders.

Pact Unpleasant Surprise

The Prime Minister described the German-Russian non-aggression pact as "a surprise of a very unpleasant character" but he refused to "pass any final judgment" on the Russian action at present.

Time and again Chamberlain emphasized Britain's determination to stand by her promise to fight for Poland if Poland goes to war to defend herself against Germany.

He went out of his way to explain that while the British-Polish mutual defense treaty has not yet been signed this does not "add to or subtract from the obligations or mutual assistance which have already been accepted."

It was generally believed that the Premier had made this observation to silence rumors that the British government, because the final British-Polish treaty had not been signed might use the technicality to slip out of the present dangerous position.

Even those members of the London diplomatic corps who favor appeasement, however, are convinced that Britain's troops will march if, as is generally feared, Germany intends to settle the Polish question by force.

Governor Orders Flag Flown On State House

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 24 (AP)—On orders issued by Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor, Maryland's flag will fly daily over the State House.

In previous years, residents recalled, it was the practice to fly the state flag when the legislature was in session and when the governor was in the State House. Former Gov. Albert C. Ritchie discontinued it on grounds too many people came to visit him when they say the flag.

Former Gov. Harry W. Nice started it again, but preferred his office in the executive mansion to the office in the State House—hence, the flag seldom appeared.

Governor O'Connor has decided the flag should be up each week-day morning, regardless of whether he is in Annapolis. On National holidays, the National Colors will fly above the state flag.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 24 (AP)—Three Connecticut National guardsmen were killed and eleven injured today by lightning during a severe thunderstorm which swept the first army maneuvers area today.

Forty other men were brought to the Plattsburg hospital suffering from storm injuries.

Boat Passengers, Crew Terrorized By Escaped Lion

Cape May, N. J., Aug. 24 (AP)—Terrorized by a full-grown lion which broke out of his cage and stalked the deck, nine passengers and thirty seamen aboard the Dutch Freighter Amazone barricaded themselves for more than eight hours today until Marine Corps and Coast Guard riflemen from Cape May shot the animal.

With the lion in undisputed command of the forward deck and a cargo which included dynamite and more beasts below, the Amazone raced ninety miles to a point within six miles of the cape, where First Sergeant Michael Peskan of the Marine Corps rifle range and seven most guards led by Chief Boat-swain's Mate John Williams met the freighter.

An officer rapped on a porthole glass and motioned, "shoot him," when the lion poked his head around a corner and growled.

The crew had barred both passageways after the lion went forward, Peskan said, and the rescue party climbed aboard to the safety of midship.

"The lion was lying in a very awkward position, between a hatch and a wall. I had to go into a cabin and shoot through a porthole. They told me I would have to hit him in a vital spot, so I aimed for the eyes and hit him right between them."

The 30-calibre bullet did not finish the animal, nor did a second. They drove him out of hiding, however, and three more bullets killed him.

Marriage Delay Law Is Upheld Court Rules Minister's Constitutional Rights Not Violated

Elkton, Md., Aug. 24 (AP)—The Circuit court ruled today the forty-eight-hour marriage delay law had not violated a minister's constitutional rights and refused to declare the law void.

The Rev. Joseph Baker, plaintiff who sought an injunction restraining Walter E. Buck, Clerk of the Circuit court from enforcing the law, was said by the court to have "failed to show a single right or privilege entitling him to complain."

Chief Judge W. Mason Sheehan, Associate Judges J. Owen Knott and James F. Evans, ruled the law had not interfered with Mr. Baker's right to preach or to obtain a livelihood from ministerial work and it was therefore constitutional. He was ordered to pay costs of the proceedings.

A second complaint contained in Mr. Baker's petition that the statute had been tampered with before being signed by the governor was not ruled upon by the court. The jurists declared their ruling was unnecessary.

The Rev. Baker alleged a section of the law had been written on the printed copy after the statute had been adopted by legislature.

Another complaint was that legislators had failed to set up rules by which a judge is permitted to waive the forty-eight hour delay between application and issuance of a license.

Louis Buchalter Surrenders to J. Edgar Hoover Industrial Racketeer Has Been Fugitive for the Last Two Years

New York Aug. 24 (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today that Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, industrial racketeer, surrendered to J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director.

Hoover in New York for the two and a half weeks working the "Lepke" case, refused to details as to where Lepke was taken or how but said the surrender was to him personally.

"He told me he had never left the Borough of Manhattan," Hoover said.

"He surrendered. There was money promised or paid by the FBI. We made him no promises of immunity or anything else."

Lepke 42, has been the subject of a nationwide search by federal, city and New York state authorities at a price of $50,000—$25,000 by city and $25,000 by the FBI—has been placed on his head.

He had been a fugitive for years after running out on $100,000 bail. He is wanted by federal authorities on narcotics and anti-trust indictments and by the city in connection with racketeering, the garment, fur and bank businesses.

THIS message is not intended to get you excited. But—if a fur coat has any place in your life—make up your mind to one thing: You are storing up a lot of regrets if you let August fur prices go by without doing something about it.

DON'T BE AMONG THE MISSING!

Maturity for College Is Seen As Important

Pertinent Questions Are Posed for Answer by Aspirants

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

You are planning to go to college? You may be far too young to go. Not in years, perhaps, even though you are 20, but in degree of maturity. Are you grown up enough to go to college?

To be more specific, can you look after yourself—your health, your clothes, your money, your habits of work, your conduct?

Does some one still have to supervise your health habits; see that you eat regularly and the proper foods, that you sleep regularly and enough, and that you have good habits of bodily cleanliness and sanitation?

Does some one have to tell you when you should see a doctor or remind you when to go to the dentist or brush your teeth?

How Helpless Are You?

Do you purchase your own clothes? Have them tailored and mended?

Or all these things done for you? Are you going to have your mother wash and iron your clothes while you are in college and your father carry them to and from the post office each week? I can imagine a very few cases in which that practice might be warranted, but hardly one out of a hundred.

Will your mother have to spend the hours at night from now till you leave for college sewing, mending and laundering clothes for you to wear at college—while you go slaving gaily about almost every night? Will you make the necessary purchases for college yourself or will your parents have to do this?

Will your father purchase the ticket for you at the station, and check the baggage when you leave? Are you still so dependent on your parents, still so immature?

And after you arrive at college, and later return to college after vacation, will you be wiring, telephoning, writing airmail and special delivery for things you have left behind? Will you expect to receive a package of cookies, cakes and fruit from Mother, such as she used to bring you after you had gone to school? Will you be homesick?

Do you beg for money as you want it, or have you learned to operate on an allowance? Will you be writing home repeatedly for money, or will you have a budget, spending wisely?

Have you acquired good habits of mental work by doing your school assignments regularly while at high school? Or did your parents have to keep after you concerning your school grades? Have you learned how to study well according to a program?

From now until you leave for college you might, by taking thought, and considerably to your stature in maturity, and even after you enter college. Anyway, your success in college and in later life will depend largely on how rapidly you grow up and become a reasonably self-reliant and responsible man or woman.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Should boys wash dishes?
A. Most certainly. In the average home a boy can learn to do almost anything a girl can do. In the home where the father helps about the house, the growing boy easily learns to take his place, along with his sister, at the dishpan or the broom. It is good training for his character and for being a good husband and father by and by.

Retired Miller Dies

Bluefield, W. Va., Aug. 24 (AP)—John Walter Portis, 83-year-old retired miller, died of pneumonia yesterday at the home of a daughter. He formerly operated a mill at Wytheville and came to Graham in 1903 to operate the old Benbow mill. Portis retired in 1924.

A Real Need

WHAT is needed in this country—and in this community—is a broader spirit of tolerance and a better appreciation of it.

Many of our controversies, disputes and strifes would vanish like a mist under the rays of the morning sun if this were the case.

Of the different meanings of tolerance, that representing endurance, or capacity for suffering hardships, is not meant.

What is meant is the disposition to allow the existence of beliefs, practices or habits differing from one's own; freedom from bigotry; sympathetic understanding of others' beliefs without necessarily accepting them.

Bigotry is the obstinate and unreasoning attachment to one's own belief and opinions, with intolerance of beliefs opposed to them.

Because an inflamed, irritated or enraged man says a thing is so does not necessarily make it so. Facts are facts. Truth is adamant and enduring. The thing to do, in all cases of doubt, is to seek the truth.

If all parties to a dispute would only practice tolerance, pursue a broad, sympathetic, reasonable attitude toward any condition or theory, we should have fewer disputes. That would make for peace, happiness and solid prosperity.

This War Must Go On

THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE seems to have an answer for almost everything which puzzles the man who lives off the land. But there is one enemy of the tiller of the soil which has the upper hand. The Japanese beetle scourge is reported spreading over the country despite every effort of farmers and authorities, who admit there is no known method of complete extermination.

This admission of defeat by a well-organized and scientifically proficient government bureau is admirable for its frankness, and suggests that those in charge of the laboratories must intensify their efforts to find a solution. No doubt, every scientist engaged in the work of the department pictures himself as another Pasteur, eager to find his way through the maze of learning into that narrow corridor which leads to the truth.

Various parasites and chemicals have been tried with slight success in the war against this pest. So far, all that the experts of the department of agriculture can say about the Japanese beetle is: "The only answer is to learn to live with them." That, however, is hardly satisfactory. If we can go by the experience of the past, we can hope that the real answer will ultimately be found. This war is one that must go on.

Vulnerable

THE BELATED JUSTICE done the old movie star, William S. ("Bill") Hart, by a California court that clears his name of a false charge that had hung over it for years, reminds us anew how vulnerable the popular idol is to the designs of the unscrupulous.

At the height of his fame, Hart was accused in a paternity case by a woman who, years later, confessed that the child she said was Hart's was not his. Hart's conscience had been clear, but to shut off a nasty case which imperiled his career, he set up a trust fund for the child, to mature last year. His present plea was for the release of this fund to him, it having been amply proved meanwhile that the earlier charge was sheer extortion.

Those who figure in the popular fancy as knights above reproach are particularly attractive targets to the blackmailer. Clark Gable went to bat with one who claimed to be the mother of a child allegedly his, and revealed her to be, if not a criminal, with no case, at least a psychopath. The ordeal hurt Gable's reputation not at all; but the urge is still strong to pay off and avoid the possible consequences of a public smear. The vindication in Hart's case was twenty years coming. He is to be congratulated that it comes, even now.

They Can't Blame Ray

CAREFUL PERUSAL of the series of articles by ex-Chief Brain Truster Ray Moley, now running in the Saturday Evening Post, leads to the conclusion that it is difficult to differentiate between forms of nut-ism.

Moley, as might be imagined, appears to think he alone was sane. Well, everyone is entitled to his opinion, even of himself.

However, it is interesting to learn the details of how the various forms of crackpotism were fastened upon the taxpayers, to the detriment of business and payrolls. And Moley's spilling of the peanuts in the squirrel cage will not be beneficial to the Roosevelt prestige.

Ray did his best, if his disclosures are to be believed. If the squirrels spurned his variety of peanuts, they have only themselves to blame for their present pangs.

Reminder

ANNOUNCEMENT that some of the WPA workers who were dropped under the eighteen-months rule in Maryland have already been restored to work serves as a reminder to those who were under misapprehension regarding the rule and its purpose.

Harry D. Willard, of Baltimore, deputy administrator, reports that 110 relief workers were dropped in the state prior to August 1, this being after Congress had passed the law requiring all workers who had been on WPA projects for eighteen months or more to be dropped and not restored to work for thirty days.

Among those who have finished their thirty-day layoff are forty-two Hagerstown workers, who have been reassigned to projects. No more than 110 can be restored to the rolls this month, Mr. Willard said.

The bulk of the 5,000 WPA workers on the rolls for more than eighteen months will be dropped this month. Up to August 15, Willard said, 1,800 had been dropped, 1,000 of them in Baltimore. Of the total to be dropped, 2,600 are in that city. Congress provided that all affected by the rule should be cut before September 1.

But, as the purpose of the lay-off was to enable a number of those long on the jobs to find private employment, the WPA will shortly begin a survey to determine what the dismissed long-time relief employees are doing. The survey will attempt to learn how many have found employment and what has become of those who have not. Those of the latter class who are in real need will be restored to work, as rapidly as it is possible to get them back.

Another Purge?

THE WOMEN'S DIVISION OF THE DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL COMMITTEE publishes a monthly magazine called The Democratic Digest. Its pages are usually devoted to pointing with pride at Democratic victories, to explaining defeats, and to emphasizing harmony and progress in Democratic party affairs.

The August issue of the Digest, however, carries a most revealing article on the subject of the president's Spending-Lending bill. For the story features a list of the forty-seven Democrats who (along with 146 Republicans) brought about the defeat of that measure. The natural question that arises is whether there is to be another "purge."

No wonder that discouraged Democratic Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, recently told reporters "it is a waste of time to discuss who will be nominated by the Democrats, for the party will certainly be defeated."

Even Better Hot Dogs

IT is important news that an improved hot dog is about to make its appearance. Certainly, a large element of the community can be counted on to welcome whatever makes a genuine betterment of the popular American frankfurter, despite its rise already to a first position on the menu at the outdoor luncheon when President Roosevelt entertained King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Perfection in the way of a tender and tasty skin has finally been attained, Chicago announces. Detail of the complicated process is of little moment; using a fruit juice and "peptizing" the skins provides casings, it seems, having "pep" enough to hold but not in the least suggesting to masticators anything like a gristly hide.

To the great army of hot dog eaters this will be looked upon as another case of gliding refined gold.

Who's Ahead?

IN THE HEARINGS before the Senate Committee on the lend-to-spend bill Secretary H. O. (To-the-Left) Wallace said that "We are not as concerned with the curtailing of crops as some gentlemen have customarily assumed."

Two days later Claude R. Wickard, Director of the North Central Division of the AAA, at Fort Dodge, Ia., said that "Unless something happens to this corn crop (current crop) we must plan on planting fewer acres of corn in 1940."

Who's ahead?

We are far more athletic than our grandparents, according to a noted physician. That's easy to understand. Gramps didn't get all the exercise we do in crawling into and out of motor cars.

It is now estimated that the human race is 2,000,000 years old. We wouldn't know about that, but mankind has certainly been acting as though it is in its second childhood.

The man at the next desk says he's noticed that when a politician begins to use the old soft soap it's usually a sign he is afraid he is all washed up.

One of the unsolvable mysteries of life is why no matter where you decide to spread your picnic lunch it's always on an ant hill.

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I remember the scandal in our town when a middle-aged woman married a very young man. . . . You'd have thought neither of them had any right to marry whom they pleased, and it was freely prophesied that the marriage wouldn't last and she'd be sorry. . . . That's twenty-five years ago—and it did, and she wasn't.

I go into the mountains every summer on vacation but I never fish. . . . I have a friend who likes to fish but wouldn't dream of eating a fish. That's convenient for me.

Confession: I don't really enjoy gardening.

When I was ten years old I threw oranges at Chinese vegetable men and pestered them in other ways. . . . I'm still ashamed of that part of my past.

I read the other day that a man is old only when his thoughts are more often toward the past than toward the future. . . . Is that true?

But you ARE beginning to get old when the noise of children at play annoys you.

Nag at me to read a book. . . . And I'll find half a dozen reasons for not looking at it.

If you haven't a "common streak" in you, I think you are missing a lot of the joy of living.

The other day a friend asked me if I could stand some frank criticism. . . . I said I could. . . . But even as I said it I had a crinkly feeling at the back of my neck and knew I wasn't feeling the truth.

To my relief, he was merely asking for information, but I reminded myself of a dog growling in his throat at a strange noise outside the house.

I used to write poems but I gave it up. . . . Now I am amazed at all those men and women who aren't really poets either but who get so much pleasure out of writing poems. . . . And I envy them, too.

I like the blackbird with a scarlet splash on his wing. I like the seal barking and diving from a rock. I like the meadow lark singing out his heart on a fence post. . . . But I don't like the after-dinner speaker.

The Human Side Of The News

By EDWIN C. HILL

You Mr. Straphanger, if you want a steady job in the movies, without long spells of unemployment and without being shoved off the lot by younger competitors, just head for the westerns, the horse operas. There is the least labor turnover, and the best chance for a nice, comfortable home life, and maybe a little bungalow all your own, with a neat hedge and a gravel walk.

Curiously enough, this zone of social security in Hollywood is known as "Poverty Row." I've been hobnobbing with a couple of Hollywood friends this week, one of them a director. They tell me that the sure fire movie is, nine times out of ten, a western; and that for the great mass of rural Americans they are, year in and year out, winners over all the gaudiest and most expensive films ever offered.

The public likes the old scenarios, too — the school teacher or the judge's daughter, out from the East, for love interest; the sheriff, the badman, the dare devil young hero, all geared into pretty much the same pattern of action.

Several producers have varied the scheme at times, concentrating on characterization, shaking up the old plot, working in sophistication. These efforts all flopped. There is a generation which has grown up with the trusty old western, and it would just as soon put caviar on its pancakes as to accept any other.

Are Range People

About ninety percent of the players are range people, my friends inform me, with only a scattering of dude-ranch cowboys and a few who have learned the trade working around the lot. They have been resistant to the lures and blandishments of Hollywood, and in their years of association have built up a sort of communal life, a co-operative colony in a sense.

They save their money, and any of their number in distress is helped over the bump. They roll their own cigarettes, speak naturally and unconsciously their native lingo, buy their bungalows on the installment plan and don't worry much about clothes, as much of their life is spent in their working rig, supplied by the company.

Even offshift you're apt to see them in ranch clothes, and they don't seem quite at ease when they're up in town clothes. Many of them chug back and forth in old family fivers. There isn't a real badman among them, and many are teetotalers and church-goers.

Always Sufficient

The term "drugstore cowboy" came from the little drug store at the end of Poverty Row, where the boys gather to toss off an ice cream soda and talk shop, while they are waiting for a call. That old frontier scene at Saugus, with the houses with false fronts, more familiar to Americans perhaps than any other movie property, is always quite sufficient for a backdrop for the principal shooting episodes. The barroom set, which we all know so well, has been used perhaps 600 times.

They rush through a western in about six days. The cost will be anywhere from $10,000 to $25,000 and, my friends tell me, there hasn't been a one — where they

SPEAKING OF RED ACTIVITIES

No Surprise in the Nazi-Communist Agreement, Least of All for England

By MARK SULLIVAN

Who confesses surprise? Who could have thought otherwise? Who ever supposed that Russia would help England as against Germany? That one dictatorship would help a parliamentary government against another dictatorship? That one authoritarian government would help a democratic government against another authoritarian government?

For clarity, drop for the moment the names of nations, as nations. In the great conflict that is on in the world, nations are mere geographical units. To understand the conflict, to understand what has just happened, do not think in terms of countries. Think in terms of the ideologies that are in worldwide war. Instead of Russia, think dictatorship, authoritarian government (the type known as Communism). Instead of Germany, think, again, dictatorship, authoritarian government (the type known as Nazi-Fascism). Instead of England, think parliamentary government.

Stalin is the head of the Communist world-movement. From its beginning in 1917 the aim of Communism has been to impose Communism on the world; to break down all other forms of government and substitute Communist dictatorship; to eradicate everywhere the system of society which Communism calls, with demeaning intent, "capitalism", and to substitute the Communist system. To this end, for twenty years, the heads of Communism have sent agents and money into other countries, used all their cunning, directed all their diplomacy. From this purpose Communism has never desisted.

They own little or nothing in the way of plants and properties perhaps borrowing a ranch, or staking out a slab of canyon and desert which nobody wants. All in all, the westerns bring the steadiest and best returns with the least overhead.

And stereotyped as they may be, they are America's well of pure romance undiluted, where black is black and white is white, right is right and wrong is wrong, and where virtue always wins and evil always is put down. Being a movie buckaroo is a nice, safe trade if you can break into it. Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A Question To Ask Yourself

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

Ten thousand employees in the department of Agriculture are being solicited, in letters sent out by an assistant to Secretary Wallace, to contribute to the projected Hyde Park library, which is to contain President Roosevelt's papers and collections and constitute a memorial to him. He has deeded a twelve-acre hayfield for this purpose, and while the library is to be administered by the National Archives and maintained by the National Park Service, the $350,000 building is to be erected from funds raised by private subscription.

Because the purpose is not to secure contributions for a political campaign, this canvass of government employees probably escapes the prohibitions and penalties of the Hatch act. To determine, however, whether the political implications are present or not, and whether this is all akin to a shake-down, ask yourself how many—if any—of the 10,000 Government employees, a number of them in the low-salaried brackets, would contribute if they held private jobs.

Hardly a Chance

Having this purpose, what would Stalin do in the situation that arose through the past fear? Would he help England—England the very parent and citadel of parliamentary government? There was hardly a chance of it.

On the contrary, of all nations, the one in which Stalin was most anxious to break down the system of individual liberty and parliamentary government, was England. (And next to England, the United States). And the way to do that was not to save England from war. It was to further the involvement of England in war. That would mean the suspension of individual liberty and of parliamentary government, and mean also economic impoverishment, which Stalin could fairly hope might destroy the system of private property, and bring Communism. To bring about involvement of England in war was, to Stalin and Communism, the supremely desirable thing. Next to that, to cause England to spend vast sums in preparation for war would go far toward serving the same purpose.

For Stalin to give help to Germany can be a surprise only to those who do not understand how fundamentally and closely Russian Communism and German Nazism are kin. It could surprise only those misled by Hitler's use of out-

Stopping Hitler Depends on Might

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, Aug. 24.—This column suggested the other day that wars are usually started only when one side or the other feels that the balance of military power is clearly in its favor that victory seems certain. Timidly and tentatively it concluded that power in Europe seemed so evenly balanced that war was not indicated.

That counted Russia as unfriendly to the Axis powers. On one day a German-Russian trade agreement is announced and on the next a non-aggression treaty. The terms of neither are known. But if this news means what it seems to mean, it is the most startling and sinister development since the war.

Major modern war, as Woodrow Wilson used to say, is a matter of five M's—men, money, materials, morale and mobilization. It is hard to say which are the more important. You may have unlimited sources of raw materials and many millions of men—as Russia has—but if they are not mobilized for the uses of war and you haven't the money to prepare them, they won't stop any mass movement across your borders. Or you may have the highest military morale and be mobilized both as to the men and materials—like Germany—but if you are short on raw resources and haven't the money to supply the lack, you may flash to a victory in a "lightning war" but you can't stand a national siege, such as the endurance contest of 1917 and 1918.

Could Upset Balance

Putting Russia's limitless materials resources behind Germany's completely mobilized and highly efficient industrial machine could violently upset the balance of power in Europe. To the extent that this is done it vastly increases the military strength of both nations. Since the trade agreement appears to be on a kind of barter basis, it gets around another difficulty of both countries—their lack of money.

On the political side this development is equally startling. As this column and many other observers have long contended, there is a fundamental difference between Stalin's dictatorship and Hitler's. They both ruthlessly subject all individual liberty and property to an all-power state. Their hot hostility to each other always sound phony. Their only real conflict in territorial aims. If these can be composed by some economic arrangement, their reasons for hostility to the capitalist countries are mutual and almost identical.

Equally Explosive

The effect of a non-aggression treaty on the immediate military situation is equally explosive. If Germany can march into Poland with no fear of meeting hostile Russian forces on the way, the chance of Polish resistance even with all the help France and England can bring, is just about absolute zero.

If war comes now it will be a fight to preserve to Poland the Corridor and Danzig—a city of 400,000, ninety-five per cent of whom are Germans who want to go back to Germany. In the quarrelsome thousand years since it was first mentioned, it has belonged to Poland, Prussia, Russia, Poland, France, the Hanseatic League and itself as a "free" city. The Corridor is a geographical and political freak. It was carved out of Germany at Versailles. It splits Prussia in two. It has been, and will continue to be, a constant source of irritation.

Not the Real Cause

For such a cause and in such a situation will England and France fight and bring on a new world war? The answer of those who say "Yes" is: "This isn't the real cause. The cause is Hitler's power politics and constant aggression. He must be stopped some time."

That is true. He must be stopped sometime. But if this sudden change in the military, political and economic situation is such that he can't be stopped this time and this place, should immeasurable agony be brought to the world to try to stop what appears in this case, to be unstoppable? It is like resisting a robber with his gun at your head—noble nonsense. — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Germany Has Wide Advantage in Trained Pilots for War Service

Superiority in Air To Be Determined by Fliers Ready for Battle

By DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor
New York, Aug. 24 (AP) — If the war comes to Europe, initial superiority in the air probably will be determined by the manpower available for combat aloft — and Germany is reported to have a wide margin of advantage in trained personnel.

Combat planes of all powers which might be drawn into conflict are much alike in performance. Both sides, judging from reports brought back from Europe by American aircraft engineers and manufacturers, probably would have little trouble replacing planes lost in battle. It has been estimated that warplane fleets would have to be replaced completely every month.

But due to the extensive training required to fly present-day military aircraft, the personnel problem has been critical in many countries, even in peacetime. It has been the Achilles heel of British air rearmament.

Crashes have cost the lives of almost 200 Royal Air Force pilots this year. The death of a highly trained pilot is a serious matter. Pilot shortage has become so acute that the air ministry is impelled to advertise extensively in newspapers for recruits.

"Yesterday one of a million," an R. A. F. advertisement reads. "Today a man of importance."

Germany Has 100,000 Pilots

As long as a year ago Germany was reported to have a pilot force of about 100,000 men, exclusive of the vast ground personnel needed to run an air force. This has been built up by diligent concentration on training for at least six years. Training losses are large, like Britain's.

Britain's air force embraces about 100,000 officers and men, inclusive of ground crews. The British have announced they hope to increase the air arm personnel to 250,000 this year, including the "auxiliary services."

Italy's flier force, like Germany's, is large enough to allow for heavy losses in combat. While no figures are available on France, that nation has been described as better off in personnel than Great Britain.

While Poland's air force of 1,000 so-called "first line" planes is not balanced as to types, it is adequately manned for the initial weeks of a war.

All the nations which might be a party to a war have good equipment. As a sample of British pursuits, the super-marine Spitfire, carrying eight machine guns and powered with a 1,000-horsepower Rolls-Royce engine which gives it a top speed of 360 miles an hour, compares favorably with anything Germany has to offer in that class. The engine, however, is not as easily repaired and overhauled as the Daimler-Benz, a 1,100-horsepower motor which is standard equipment in the German Heinkel.

The Spitfire is reported to be a little faster than the Heinkel. The latter carries two small cannons, for assault on attacking bombers, and two machine guns.

British Bombers Are Slow

British bombers, some American observers report, leave much to be desired. The famous Wellington, fitted with two 225-horsepower Bristol Pegasus engines, has a speed of about 240 miles an hour. That compares with more than 300 miles an hour for the German Dornier "Do 17," equipped with 1,100-horsepower Daimler-Benz engines.

Each carries about a ton of bombs.

France's airplane production has improved over a year ago, but it has had to buy engines from Britain to take up the lag in its engine factories.

The French Morane and Caudron Pursuit, fitted with a Gnome-Rhone, Hispano Suiiza or Renault 1,000-horsepower engine, compares favorably with British Pursuits in speed. The Loire et Olivier French bomber will carry a bomb load in excess of 1-2 tons at 250 miles an hour.

Poland is short of pursuit planes but its bombers are reported to give exceptional performance. Poland's weakness is the fact that most of its planes—and in the event of war it probably could not count on purchasing planes from England or France—are made in the PZL factory, an easy target for bombs, at Warsaw.

Italy's warplane production problem is material. The workmanship is exceptional but a lack of materials has forced the Italians into using wood in many instances.

Both Greece and Poland have been buying warplanes in small quantities from England. Germany and Italy have been buying from nobody and selling to nobody in Europe.

Many Nations Buy American Planes

The United States for several years has been selling high performance warplanes to England, France, Norway, Sweden, Finland, The Netherlands, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Turkey, Rumania and Russia. Manufacturing licenses have accompanied some of the sales.

If, as is generally supposed, war in Europe would mean mass bombing raids on large population centers, the staying qualities of each nation's civilian morale would have as much to do with the success or failure of a nemesis's air tactics as the failure of an enemy's air tactics.

In England, most vulnerable country in Europe to air raids, some American visitors have been told that the British regard the first three months of any future war as the critical period. If civilian morale can be maintained past that point, the belief runs, air bombs never would win the war.

Union Attempting To Prove Trouble No Labor Dispute

ferred to the fact that many questions were relayed through the local management to New York officials of the corporation for final decision.

Competitive Wages Disputed

Turning to wages, he said that the company refused to consider the union's request for a general fifteen per cent increase but agreed to negotiate on the basis of wages paid in competitive plants.

He charged that wages paid in the Celanese plant here are "from fifteen to twenty per cent lower than in competitive plants."

Even with the increase proposed by the company, every employee's wages would still be below those in competitive plants, he claimed.

Returning once more to the matter of technological displacement, Dundon said the company declined to agree to a proposal that the company and the union set up a joint fund to take care of displaced workers.

The management refused, too, to consider the transfer of displaced workers to the new Pearlsburg, Va., plant of the company, he added.

Dismissal wages in the cases of displaced workers were discussed, but no agreement reached, he went on.

Rejected By Members

Finally, on July 25, Dundon said, the union negotiating committee agreed to submit the proposed contract to its membership for approval or rejection.

It was rejected by the membership, he continued, after which the negotiating committee was instructed to continue negotiations. At the same time, the membership "voted to vest full power in the committee . . . to take what steps they deemed advisable."

"The membership did not take a strike vote," the union president asserted.

Dundon Tells How It Happened

Dundon described in considerable detail the events leading up to the stoppage on August 4.

"People were becoming very anxious after a year's negotiations without results," he stated.

So, on August 3, he asked Personnel Superintendent Allan for a definite answer on matters in dispute by noon the next day. Dundon admitted that Allan made no promise of an answer by that time.

He called Allan several times during the afternoon of August 4 and was informed that no answer had been received from New York, he said.

Disturbances Start

"Then, sometime after 3 o'clock, I began to get calls from the various departments concerning disturbances taking place," he went on. (Dundon was at union headquarters.)

"What's going on?" he said he was asked, to which he replied "I don't know."

He told the callers that there was "nothing official—no official action calling for a demonstration of any kind."

Asked for advice on what to do, Dundon said he replied, "Keep a cool head and use your own judgment."

He expected the management to call him if there was anything serious, he stated, adding that such had been their practice previously in the case of disorders in the plant.

"Small Demonstration"

"I thought it was just a small demonstration, like the 'sit-down' of a year ago," he continued. Allan had mentioned on the phone only that there was "some unrest" in the plant, he testified.

The upshot of Dundon's testimony was that the stoppage had started in only one department—Cellulose Acetate — and had gotten out of hand. Then, he said in substance, the company had made a "temporary stoppage" permanent by closing down the machinery and locking the gates.

Management "Agitated" Workers

"The attitude of the management tended to agitate the workers," he asserted, explaining that he meant the shutting down of machines and remarks of department superintendents.

Dundon said that when he and members of the union executive committee went to the plant shortly before 11 p. m., the gate leading into the plant proper was closed and locked and guarded by company police.

He added that he told Allan he would get all the workers back in the plant if the company would agree to "negotiate fairly." Allan was interested only in salvaging material in process in C-A, he claimed.

Union Rests Case

The union rested its case—temporarily at least—at 4:05 p. m.

Six witnesses testified for the company: Fred T. Small, chief engineer; Herman Rainalter, superintendent of the C-A department; Joseph E. Cope, spinning room supervisor; Alvin B. Storey, assistant textile superintendent; Cyril Croft, dyehouse superintendent; and Brian Plunkett, superintendent of the warp-knitting department.

Their testimony consisted, in the main, of descriptions of occurrences in their departments on the afternoon the stoppage began.

"Cut Machines to Avoid Damage"

All indicated that many of the workers stopped work voluntarily and emphasized that the machines were not shut down except to prevent damage because they were untended.

The company witnesses were sharply cross-examined by union counsel, but frequently returned as good as was sent.

The stoppage began in the C-A department, according to Rainalter. Then, according to the other department heads, C-A employees visited their units "persuading" employees to stop work.

All six witnesses insisted that the company had no intentions of shutting down the plant—but was forced to by the walk-out.

"No Act of God"

At one point, Storey was explaining that regular procedure provided for shutdown of machinery in "emergencies," such as floods.

"You mean acts of God?" union counsel asked.

"I couldn't call this situation an act of God, sir," Storey shot back.

Storey also provoked laughter from the crowd when he said he had heard rumors of an impending stoppage at 10 a. m., 12 noon, and 3 p. m.

"And then they really did the job at 4 p. m.," he stated.

Storey explained, too, that he didn't argue with the idle workers, because he feared "violence."

Feared Violence

Union counsel, including I. Duke Avnet, Isadore Katz and Alfred Udoff, vigorously contested the right of company counsel to cross-examine witnesses. After some argument, they entered a formal objection.

The Celanese company was represented by John W. Avirett II, Dorsey Watkins, and James Alfred Avirett.

Sitting on the case was the full board, including Chairman William Milnes Maloy, Russell S. Davis, and Joseph P. McCurdy.

THIS IS continuation of a series of advertisement, started last December, which are designed to show the relation of the distilling industry to other industries and to the general economic welfare of the State of Maryland. The purposes of the Association of Maryland Distillers and Allied Industries are: 1. To bring about a better and more sympathetic understanding of the distilling industry as a major contributor to the tax resources and the economic welfare of the State of Maryland. 2. To weld more closely the common interests of the distilling and allied industries, the laborer and the farmer. 3. To oppose confiscatory and discriminatory taxes in any field. 4. To contribute to public education for the temperate and moderate use of alcoholic beverages. 5. To cooperate in any movement backed by recognized civic or social groups for the elimination of undesirable methods and practices in the dispensation of alcoholic beverages. This new series of advertisements will show how the Association is seeking to carry out these objectives.

Social Items and Ideas of Interest for the Women

Annual Joint Kiwanis-Rotary Outing Is Event at Cumberland Country Club

Rotarians, Kiwanians and their ladies held their joint annual picnic yesterday at the Cumberland Country Club and enjoyed a diversified program of sports, games and other picnic activities.

The program began at 2 o'clock in the afternoon when golf, horse-shoe pitching, tennis, softball, water polo and other games were played. In the evening a basket picnic dinner was served, following which another program of games was carried out.

Winners of each class of events received prizes donated by firms and members.

While the outdoor games were being played in the afternoon, the women had a bridge tournament in the club house. Eight tables were in play, the winners being Mrs. E. B. Moyer, who took first prize; Mrs. Frank Carpenter, who won the second, and Mrs. John Shoupe, who took the third prize.

Series of Socials

The Miraculous Medal Club will begin a series of socials at 8:30 p. m. Friday, September 1, at the Allegheny hospital for the benefit of the Kitzmiller Mission.

The socials will be held weekly on Friday evenings under the management of Mrs. William Barclay and Mrs. O. A. Norris. Refreshments will be served.

Delegates Are Chosen

At membership meeting of the First Methodist church Wednesday evening at the church, Bedford street, Mrs. Philip Lucas, 817 Fayette street, was elected delegate and Elmer Elbin, 247 Bond street, was elected alternate to the annual conference October 5 and 6 in Baltimore.

More Family Reunions

The family reunion season is in full swing in Allegheny county and the tri-state area, several more being announced in addition to those already reported.

The close clan will hold its first annual reunion Sunday August 27, at Meadow Mountain. Several hundred persons are expected to attend from the three neighboring states.

The annual reunion of the Barker-Mattingly families will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday, at Minke's pool.

The annual reunion of the Long family will be held Sunday at Crystal Park with hundreds anticipated from Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and three members from Kansas City.

New DeMolay Members

Nine new members were initiated by the Cumberland chapter of the Order of DeMolay Wednesday at ceremonies held at the Masonic temple.

They are Charles William Appel, William Leslie Grey, Nelson William Kaylor, Edward Robert Messmer, Maxwell Lewis Trocette and Joseph Eugene Wilkinson, all of Cumberland; Thomas Glenn Elias and Walter Clifton Jeffries, of Frostburg; and George Donald, Sr., of Lonaconing.

Plans have been completed for a dance to be held at the All Ghan Country Club Friday evening, September 8, for the DeMolay and their friends.

Birthday Event

A party and dance were given Wednesday evening honoring the twenty-first birthday of William McGinn by his mother, Mrs. Anna McGinn, 10 Utah street. Games were played, and music was furnished by Mrs. Aldridge, Floyd Miller and Homer Welsh. Refreshments were served.

Those present were Miss Dora Aldridge, Waynesboro, Pa.; Doris Hendrickson, Marie Purlow, Dorothy Browning, May Shipley, Mary Jane Widdows, Ester Robinette, Betty Love, Jacob Nairn, Edward Mortfelt, Homer Welsh, William McGinn, Floyd Miller, Gordon McGinn and Walter Hausman.

Will Leave Early

Members of the Homemakers Chorus will leave at 5 a. m. Thursday, August 31, from the Blue Ridge bus station, 9 Frederick street, for State College, Pa. The chorus will sing in the morning at the third annual meeting of the National Home Demonstration Council, which meets at the same time as the American Life Association.

All persons wishing to attend the convention must notify Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mrs. W. L. Maddocks, Mrs. Claude T. Jett, or Home Agents, by Monday, August 28.

The chorus will return Thursday evening while others may stay for the remainder of the session if they so desire.

Newlyweds Surprised

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Callis, 300 East Oldtown road, had a surprise reception for their son, Charles, and daughter-in-law, Lee Ann, Tuesday evening. More than 100 relatives and friends gathered to congratulate and wish the newlyweds happiness. Following the reception and old fashioned serenade was given by all the young folks in the neighborhood, refreshments were served.

Old Scents for New

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN granddaughter, sweetly perfumed, brushes by grandma on her way to the merry evening party, the dear old girl takes a deep breath, smiles sweetly and says, "That takes me back to my young ladyhood when I used to sing 'Every morn I bring thee violets.'"

Yes, my paper friends, the good old time perfumes are coming back with a bang. Why not? The fashions of the day are sartorial ghosts of the naughty nineties. Shirtwaists, petticoats, hats trimmed to kill, wide skirts—the whole kit and caboodle. Naturally, perfume chemists fall in line, dig back into the old formulas, go quaint and romantic.

If you like violet you like it, and if you don't you won't have it within a mile of you. It's like hiccups; has its devotees and its critics.

Violet in Everything
We find whole cosmetic outfits scented with violet—powders, creams, astringents, sachets, toilet waters, dusting powders. And that's not all by any means. You will also find violet colored eyeshadows perfumed with the same modest scent, and sweetly sniffy nail polish that is a combination of rose and blue, close to the color of the shrinking flower.

To have the same perfume in all one's beauty props is to save money. Wardrobe and dresser drawers become impregnated with the forested odor. Better than using several perfumes that fight and destroy each other.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PITY THE POOR LEADER

HAVING THE opportunity to make the opening lead against a contract is supposed to be one advantage possessed by the defenders to offset that held by the declarer in having had the opportunity to select the declaration for the contract which seems best to fit his side's cards. Plenty of times, however, the leader should be considered an object of pity because he has to make a blind guess, with a good chance that whatever he does may be the very thing which will make the contract.

thoroughly unsound bid with four cards in the unbid suits which might be losers.

West was in a spot in which the chances were even money that he would make a fatal lead. If he opened a heart or the club A, his side could take the first three tricks, but if he chose a spade or a trump, the declarer would win the trick and then throw his losing club on a spade honor. He decided to try a trump, on the theory that he might thus prevent a ruff by the dummy, and the beans were spilled.

Phantom Ranch
by OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE
WHEN LORENA was about half a mile from the ranch house, she told herself she was a fool. She had already had one experience riding around alone. In broad daylight, she had been kidnapped, so anything could happen at night.

Or could it? Wouldn't it, she asked herself, be actually safer to ride alone at night rather than in daylight? For one thing, she would not be caught napping again. Even now she held her rifle in front of her as she rode. She could touch a safety button, swing the muzzle and shoot in not more than one second. And then shoot again and again. She loved to handle a rifle. Its quiet deadliness gave her a sense of security now.

She had never been to the eastern edge of the Phantom range, but she had heard the men discuss it so much that she felt she could find the way, and she wanted to get there before dawn to avoid being seen. She knew it was in rugged country and that the pasture referred to was about six miles away. She just had to guess at the place by estimating distance.

She wisely gave her horse freedom in picking its trail in the night, and so he made good footings. When she came to one deepening arroyo with some water still lingering there from the recent rains and found a number of cattle in it, she knew she was on the right trail.

Uncle George and Shot had mentioned this arroyo as the spot where Apache Indians had massacred a party of placer gold miners in 1881. It was one of the historical incidents that added credence nowadays to the Ghost river legends, made the Phantom ranch both fascinating and fearsome.

"Uncle George said you could still see the remains of the miners' old rock cabins," she told herself, riding. "I'd like to come and visit the place in daytime."

In spite of herself, she was a little frightened now, purely from imagination. Miners' arroyo, she knew, was just like any of perhaps hundreds of others in Arizona, but this one at least had cause to be haunted. She tried to smile away her fears, and did reason herself out of most of them. But in spite of the stars' intrusive brilliance the arroyo seemed extremely dark. She couldn't tell exactly in what direction she was going, but she kept her horse prancing on. She had a plan. She wasn't going to change it.

"Ho-o-o!"

Shot Rogers lifted his hand and spoke at the same time—signaling the 10 men with him to stop. When of it

Meet Challenge Of Appendicitis, Doctor Advises

Higher Death Rate Is Due to Delay and Use of Purgatives

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We discussed yesterday the danger of regarding a sudden pain in the abdomen as a matter of little importance. The position we take is well summed up in an article by Dr. Reginald Fitz, of Boston, entitled "The Challenge of Appendicitis."

Dr. Fitz is eminently qualified to write on this subject because his father, in 1886, wrote a paper which, for the first time called attention to the proper diagnosis of appendicitis—one of the most important of American contributions to medical science.

Death Rate Has Risen
The challenge consists in this that in spite of widespread knowledge of the disease, and the improvement in surgical technique, in spite of continuous educational hammering of the public on the advisability of early operation, the death rate from acute appendicitis has steadily risen. In 1900 it was 8.7 per 100,000. In 1936 it was 11.2. In Massachusetts in 1900 there were 243 fatal cases; in 1936 there were 490.

The causes of death from appendicitis are put forcibly by Dr. Frank K. Boland, of Atlanta, as "delay in operative treatment and promiscuous administration of purgatives before operation." For both of these the patient with his fetish for self-treatment is to blame.

Disease Is Very Old
Appendicitis is a very old disease, but only within modern times have the symptoms been ascribed to inflammation of the vermiform appendix.

The appendix is a vestigial organ in man. In herbivorous animals it is very large and plays an important part in digestion. In man it is contracted down to a small, hard red, lined with tonsil-like tissue. It is situated at the junction of the large and small bowels, attached to the head of the large bowel. It varies in size in different individuals from half an inch to nine inches in length, usually it is two or three inches long.

Why Cathartic Is Dangerous
Appendicitis consists in the infection by germs of the lining membrane of the appendix. The infection may go on to pus formation. While the pus is confined within the appendix it does no harm, but it has a tendency to burrow, and may rupture through the wall, producing peritonitis. While this is localized it is not dangerous, but if the infection moves out and soils the entire peritoneum, a serious, usually fatal issue results. Any movements of the intestine may produce this, and therefore any cathartic which causes cathartic which causes intestinal movement is dangerous.

Symptoms Vary Widely
The symptoms and signs of appendicitis may vary in a wide degree. Classically, there is pain, nausea, vomiting, fever, tenderness in the abdomen, increase in the white blood cells and rigidity of the abdominal muscles. The pains begin in the pit of the stomach under the ribs, move to the navel, and then over the lower right section of the abdomen.

But the pain may be anywhere because the appendix, being a free floating organ, may be anywhere. Nausea, vomiting and, more rarely, fever may be absent.

In treatment certainly the greatest danger is the promiscuous administration of cathartics. This is usually done by the patient or family, on the ground that this pain is due to something you ate and the thing to do is to clean you out.

Statistics Show Effects

Statistics are given on this point. In a group studied when a laxative was given, 7 per cent died; where no laxative was given, 2 per cent died. When only one dose was given, 1 in 17 patients died. When multiple laxatives doses were given 1 in 5 died.

The promiscuous dispensing of cathartics by druggists for acute indigestion is happily on the wane. But enough exists to repeat the warning. When druggists learn that paragonic is better for acute abdominal pain than castor oil, a better mortality rate for appendicitis will arrive.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

An Insulin Diabetic: "Can a diabetic taking insulin eat jello? If so, how would it be counted in the diet?"

Answer: A diabetic taking insulin can eat anything. The only question is how much. Jello has only a small amount of sugar, mostly in the flavoring. Eighty per cent of it is protein.

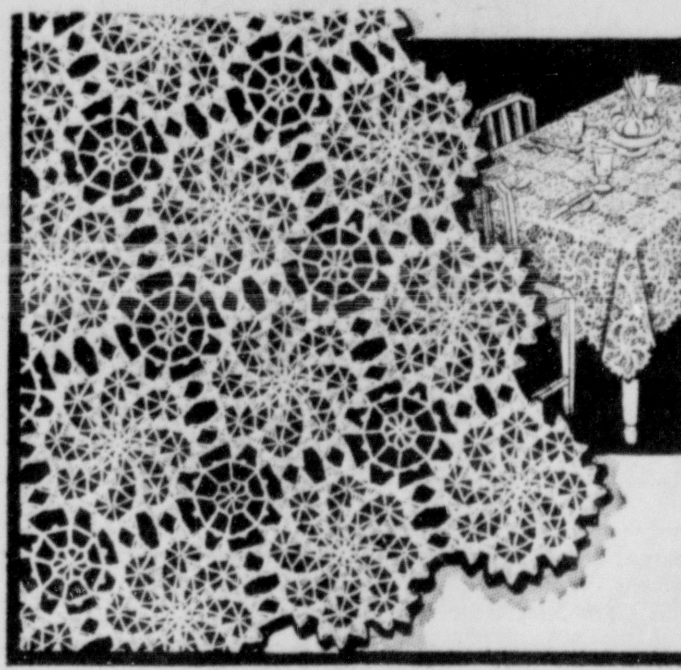

Lowell Student: "I am a Chinese boy attending school. In the morning I always eat some rice before I go to school. I take gym at school during the first period which begins at 8:40. Do you think it is all right for me to play hard after eating so soon?"

Answer: Half an hour period for digestion is enough to allow before beginning exercise.

Rader: "Would eating ice cream or chocolate candy cause you to be allergic? Would you class rhinitis as an allergic symptom?"

Answer: Yes, milk and such fla-

Income and Salaries Under Magistrate System Compared

trate system is less than their salary cost in Frederick county, but Worcester county reports court proceeds far in excess of costs. Since June 1, when the magistrates took over, Frederick county costs have been $1400, while court receipts were set at $1,021. Worcester county reported salary costs were $533 for the period, against court receipts of $2,133 turned in to the county fund. Frederick county salaries are $700 a month, more than double the salaries paid in Worcester county. The new trial magistrate system, set up by the 1939 legislature, abolished the old fee system of paying magistrates and placed the trial justices on fixed salaries.

Smart Frock in Two Versions

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9187

Are you the demure and dainty type... or are you a tailored young modern? Perhaps you change your type according to the occasion? This delightful frock will fit into either mood. For Marian Martin's Pattern 9187 comes in two versions—one be-frilled; the other more on the shirtwaist order. Both styles have bias skirts and softly bloused bodices. The daintier version is cut with a pretty square neck and has short sleeves, pointed pockets and ruffled edges. The tailored style uses a trim round collar, and is made with either short or long sleeves.

Pattern 9187 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric and 1 1/2 yards ruffling.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Knowing that smart moderns keep a step ahead in style, Marian Martin brings you an exciting, vivid picture of what "they" will be wearing this fall and winter in our new pattern book which is just out today. You'll see the new-season silhouettes in fascinating but easy-to-make clothes for day and evening. Styles for career women... "at homers" and club women... youngsters and collegians! Order a copy of the book today and plan a complete wardrobe for the fall whirl of busy days. Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Send your order to The Cumberland News, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

New York, Aug. 24—Europe's situation, moving back into the crisis stage this week, has found radio more than active in overseas pick-ups. The programs have been in addition to regular comment periods.

Like in previous developing situations, the broadcasts have been put on with little or no advance notice, being fitted into the schedule at opportune times, day and night. All three networks, NBC, CBS and MBS have followed a similar plan, with the intention to

Advance Listing Impossible

Thus, listeners to get these broadcasts, would have to keep an ear cocked to the radio because of the impossibility of listing them ahead of time.

In celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Bretz Harte, noted author, WJZ-NBC is presenting at 7 p. m. for the second time his "Outcasts of Poker Flat." Special musical score will be used.

Music from overseas, as listed for WOR-MBS at 3, is Act III of the opera, "Barber of Seville," at the Salzburg music festival in Germany.

Europe at Play

Also in the way of trans-Atlantic pickups, WABC-CBS has announced for 7 a program described as Europe at play, to which Paris, London and Berlin will contribute.

Talks: WEAF-NBC 9:30, America Unlimited, Sidney Hillman, president of the Garment Workers' union; WOR-MBS 9:45, Rep. J. W. Ditter of Pennsylvania, Republican.

Tennis: WABC-CBS 4:30, Davis inter-zone cup matches; WABC-CBS 5:45 and WJZ-NBC 5:15, Wightman cup play, both summaries.

Older Workers Can Earn Monthly Benefits under New Regulations

Regular Payments Instead of Lump Sum Settlement
Made Possible

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of questions and answers prepared by the Social Security Board explaining changes in the Social Security act made by the last congress.)

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—How do the old age insurance amendments affect workers now already sixty-five or approaching that age?

Through certain changes in the law, older workers now have an opportunity to get monthly benefits, whereas under the original law no one who became sixty-five before 1941 could qualify for monthly payments. Instead, they received lump-sum payments equal to three and one-half per cent of their total wages.

What are these changes? First, the requirement for receiving monthly benefits has been lowered for those retiring in the early years. Second, the provision which excluded wages earned after sixty-five from counting toward benefits has been removed; this change is made effective as of January 1, 1939.

Requirements Outlined
What are the requirements for receiving monthly benefits beginning in January, 1940?

To receive such benefits as soon as they become payable next year, a worker must have reached sixty-five and retired; he must have been employed for six calendar quarters after 1936, and in each of these quarters his covered wages must have come to at least $50.

Will the Social Security Board continue to authorize the payment of "lump sums" to workers reaching the age of sixty-five?

No. The payment of lump sums of this nature stopped when the amendments were signed. With the removal of the "stop-date" at age sixty-five, all workers in covered employment, regardless of age, now have an opportunity to build up enough wage credits to qualify for monthly retirement benefits.

Take the case of a man who has been earning $75 a month regularly since 1936. He will be sixty-five on December 31, 1939. What would he have received under the old plan and what will he get under the amendments?

If the act had not been changed, he could have received only a lump sum of three and one-half per cent of his total wages of $2,700, or $84.50. Under the amended program he can get $23.17 a month for the rest of his life, beginning with January 1, 1940, provided he retires on reaching sixty-five. In addition, if his wife is sixty-five she will receive $11.58 a month, making a monthly total of $34.75.

If a man working throughout 1937 reached sixty-five in January 1938, and received a lump-sum but kept on working at $75 a month, could he qualify for benefits under the amendments?

Yes. Wages earned in covered employment after December 31, 1936, and before a person became sixty-five now count toward old-age monthly benefits, regardless of the payment of a lump sum. After January 1, 1939, employment after age sixty-five also counts toward benefits. Although the worker in the case cited would not get credit for the wages he earned during the year between his sixty-fifth birthday and January 1, 1939, he would still have enough wage credits to get a monthly benefit. January 1, 1940, provided he retired.

Deduct Lump-Sum Payments
In the event that a man who has received a lump-sum payment qualifies for monthly benefits, what adjustment will be made with respect to the money already paid him?

The amount of the lump-sum payment will be deducted from his monthly payments. A man earning $40 a month became sixty-five in April 1938 and received a lump sum. He then stopped work. But if he goes back to the same job in January, 1940 can he get monthly benefits?

Yes. With the wage credits earned before he quit work in 1938 he will, if he goes back to work, have enough credits to get a monthly benefit before the end of 1940. The lump sum he received in 1938 would be reduced from his monthly benefits.

Yes. But under the revised law his sixty-fifth birthday does not necessarily mark the end of his participation in the insurance plan. He will continue to accumulate wage credits as long as he works in a job covered by the program, no matter how old he is.

May a person receiving old-age benefits return to his job at any time?

He may; but he will not receive monthly payments for the months he works in employment covered by the plan for more than $15 a month.

Conduct Last Rites For Mrs. Lulu Goff

Funeral Is Held at Church
In Tunnelton,
W. Va.

Tunnelton, W. Va., Aug. 24.—Funeral services for Mrs. Lulu Goff, 50, a resident of the Denver section for several years, were conducted Thursday at 2 p. m. from the Denver Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was made in the church cemetery. The Rev. W. R. Moyer, pastor, was in charge.

Mrs. Goff died suddenly at her home early Tuesday morning from acute indigestion.

She was a daughter of the late Thomas and Nancy Heilmann Bolyard and was born in Preston county, February 8, 1889. She was the widow of Ashford Goff, who was instantly killed in a fall in the Hillman mine here in 1929.

Two sons and a daughter survive: Kenneth Goff and Mrs. Claude Pratt of the Denver section, and Glenn Goff at home. Three brothers and one sister, Arless Bolyard, John Allen Bolyard, and Mrs. Laura Edwards of Tunnelton, and Alva Bolyard of Galloway, also survive.

Honor Alonzo Wiles

A dinner was given Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo P. Wiles honoring the eighty-fourth birthday anniversary of Mrs. Wiles' mother, Mrs. Mary Catherine Reppert. Three of her children, Ray Reppert of Buckhannon, Clyde Reppert of Bluefield, and Mrs. Ethel Nutter of Erie, Pa., were among the guests.

U. S. Bonds Get Sharpest Setback In Last 5 Years

Developments in Europe
Cause Bonds To Sell
Heavily

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Wall street, struggling with a welter of interpretations of developments in Europe, sold bonds heavily today, giving U. S. government issues their sharpest setback in five years.

Outside of bonds, clearest reactions were lacking. Stocks were sold in the morning, then bought back, resulting in a mixture of gains and losses at the close, mostly narrow.

While stocks were declining, there was an upswing in wheat with buying attributed to expectations of war demands. But then prices fell back in Chicago to close unchanged to five-eighths of a cent per bushel under yesterday, and extreme advances of four cents in Winnipeg were cut to about a cent.

On the whole, the financial sector showed less concern over the danger of war than last September, when the Czech crisis, ending in the Munich settlement, gave the stock market a severe slump.

Investment circles interpreted the sharper decline in U. S. government bonds, carrying several down $10 to $18 per $1,000 par value, to the fact that the treasury issues have recently been registering record high prices, even after today's declines they remained well above par.

The sharp dip in stocks late yesterday and early today was of a pattern with the market's recent reactions to disturbing events in Europe, but brokers said some traders took a different attitude later today, and some were buying shares which they thought would be good come peace or war.

In the stock market, notable gainers were Du Pont, up $3.75 to $137.75, and Bethlehem Steel, up $1.75 to $54.75. Small gains were registered by U. S. Steel, General Motors, Goodrich, International Nickel, Phelps Dodge Copper, General Electric, Westinghouse and others. American Telephone, however, finished $3 lower at $157, and Eastman, off $3.62 at $159.87.

British and French Military Missions To Leave Moscow

Staff Talks with Soviet Ended by Russo-German Agreement

By WITT HANCOCK

Moscow, Aug. 24 (AP)—The British and French Military Missions, which had hoped to win Soviet Russia to their side in case of war with Germany, prepared tonight to leave for home—the staff talks for which they came ended by the German-Russian non-aggression treaty.

Most of the mission members made reservations on the crack Soviet train "Red Arrow," leaving for Leningrad. From Leningrad they could continue the journey either through the Baltic states or via Finland to avoid German territory.

Emphasizing their bitter feelings, the delegations paid no official farewell calls on their Soviet opposites.

The break-up of the talks became known as German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, flew back to Germany to report to Adolf Hitler that Russia was pledged not to enter aggression against Germany in any way for ten years.

Symbolizing the Soviet Union's sudden shift in policy, Nazi Swastikas fluttered along with the Soviet red banners at the airport when Von Ribbentrop departed.

Launching a campaign to educate the public Germany is now a friend, not a bitter ideological enemy, the Soviet newspapers praised the agreement with Berlin as a bulwark for European peace.

Germans here were jubilant. Von Ribbentrop, in a farewell statement, hailed the pact as a defeat of British-French "encirclement" and added that it was "perhaps one of the most important points in the history of both peoples."

He added that the treaty should improve Russian-Japanese relations but Japanese quarters here were skeptical.

There was speculation in diplomatic quarters whether the sudden shift in the international picture might lead to a British-Japanese understanding, possibly an attempt at some sort of treaty.

Fifty-four scholars were employed by James I of England, in 1604, to write what is called the "King James Version" of the Bible. It was published in 1611.

Lack of Finances Cut Work-Relief In West Virginia

Results Reported 'Good' Despite Curtailments, Experts Aver

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 24 (AP)—Reduced appropriations have forced considerable curtailment of the state's new work-relief program, but the three months of its operation brought expressions of "very satisfactory" from some experts today.

Joseph R. Blackburn, administrative assistant in the Department of Public Assistance, said reports received from counties and municipalities which requisitioned relief clients as laborers showed the plan could be worked to advantage if funds were available.

The Road Commission, which used 2,132 "employables" during June, said the relief workers gave "excellent results."

Because of a legislative cut in the department's general relief funds, late in the spring it started eliminating "employables" from the cash grant rolls.

Those dropped still are receiving commodity grants.

The 1939 legislature authorized the department to work out with the State Road Commission some plan whereby these able-bodied relief clients could be requisitioned to work out their cash grants.

The counties and municipalities also were given the right to requisition the workers for some of their jobs.

On May 1, the department certified to those participating units a list of employables and ruled that those who refused to work would be dropped from the relief rolls.

Under the plan, employables worked out their monthly cash grant at the rate of 40 cents an hour. The June report of the Road Commission, prepared by Harry Radcliffe, showed that of 3,393 workers certified to it, 2,132 reported for work and earned $19,735.97. Seven hundred and twelve clients refused to work and were dropped by the department.

The group, in June, worked 49,339 hours.

Four hundred and eighty one certified employables could not be used because of illness, change of address (to another county) and others arranged to work in July.

Sixteen counties did not participate in the Road Commission program because no employables were available in Hancock, all the able-bodied relief labor was requisitioned by the municipalities.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Dahlia do's and don'ts

Dahlias are contrary in their cutting requirements. Fully opened flowers last longer when cut than flowers which have just begun to open.

As shown in the today's Garden-Graph, cut as long a stem as possible. Cut just above a joint, so as to leave the stalk with an open end. Pull the lower leaves off with a jerk, thus pulling a strip of the outer skin off the stem. The inner layer of the main stalk thus exposed is very absorbent and will take up additional needed water when it is thus stripped.

Early morning before the dew is off them is the best time to cut the blossoms of dahlias. It is well to carry along a pail of water so that the stems of the cut flowers can be immediately plunged into the water. Place the cut flowers in a cool, dark cellar for several hours before arranging them.

Business Buildings Swept By Fire

Gassaway, W. Va., Aug. 24 (AP)—Fire burned through four downtown business buildings today while volunteers aided departments of two communities in an effort to bring the flames under control.

A call for aid was sent to the Weston fire department.

The Sutton department arrived shortly after the fire got out of control around 4 p. m.

The blaze started in the W. P. Barnett Funeral Home and Furniture Store.

Highland to Win Double Header By 10 to 2 and 17 to 10

Redskins Land on Three Pitchers in Each Game for 13 and 16 Hits

Bruce Campbell Leads Indians in Second Game Splurge

Cleveland, Aug. 24 (AP)—The rejuvenated Cleveland Indians came back at the plate with a vengeance today, handing the Philadelphia Athletics double disaster with 10 to 2, and 17 to 2, trouncing in a doubleheader.

The Redskins landed on three hurlers in each contest for 13 and 16 hits, respectively. An 8-hit, 10-run spree in the sixth frame of the nightcap gave the home team a complete turn at bat. In this rally, outfielder Bruce Campbell delivered two singles driving in three runs. He also led a six-run splurge in the second inning of the first contest by tripling with the bases full.

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—With the help of Elbie Fletcher's two-run homer, big Max Baer chalked up his second straight victory for the Pittsburgh Pirates today, pitching a six-hitter to nip the Giants 4 to 3. Butcher had only one bad inning, the eighth, when the Giants scored all their runs on three hits, and Young's error.

Nova has been compared to Gene Tunney when Tunney was rising toward the heavyweight championship, and with good reason. He lacks Tunney's style and finish as a boxer, although he is far from being a crude hand at boxing. But he has Tunney's single-mindedness, determination and patience. He has gone about preparing himself for Louis as carefully as Tunney prepared himself for Dempsey. Long before anybody else saw him as a serious contender for the title he was headed for it in a straight line.

He has made a thorough study of physical culture, has experimented with diets and even dipped into Yoga for the help he thought it could give him in the matter of breath control. He has systematically built up his body and hardened it. He has made a careful study of his prospective opponents and, whether he ever actually is able to beat Louis, he knows more about Joe's style than anybody save, possibly Jack Blackburn, who modeled it.

U. S.—BRITISH PULCHRITUDE OF THE COURTS

Two of the players participating in the tennis tournaments this year in the U. S. take time out from their tennis to enjoy a cool dip in a pool. Pictured for their beauty as well as their ability, they are Kay Stammers (left) of England and Sarah Palfrey Fry (right) of the U. S.

THE Sportlight BY GRANTLAND RICE

Gaetano and Nova
New York—The fight parade moves on and the next big show will bring together Tony Galento and Lou Nova in Philadelphia on Sept. 7. This fight is counted upon by Galento to bring him back into the picture for another shot at Joe Louis and by Nova to move him into range for a Louis fight in 1940—provided, of course, Louis disposes of Bob Pastore later in the month.

From this angle I would say that Nova has much the better chance to win. Galento carries a heavy punch, as everybody knew all along and as he proved again by first staggering and then dropping Louis. But Nova takes a punch better than Louis and he is a much better boxer than Galento and should have no trouble hitting him. Lou doesn't punch as hard as Louis but he is a wearing, cutting, bruising puncher and on-form—he may be cut and better Galento, maybe so badly that Tony will not last the distance.

Nova is a deceptive fighter. From a ringside seat there is nothing particularly attractive about his fighting. But he always wins and at the finish his opponent is a badly beaten man. In one of his least impressive fights Gunnar Barlund had him on the floor—but the fight ended with Barlund bleeding so badly from a cut over one eye that the referee had to step in. He trailed Tommy Farr for a few rounds but caught up with him and hammered his head out of shape. He traded punches with Max Baer, beat Baer horribly and stopped him.

Lou is one of the most supremely confident young men that sport knows in any of its branches. He isn't overconfident but he stops just short of that. The fact that he is fighting Galento in Philadelphia is proof of that.

Philadelphia is Tony's home ground, pugilistically speaking. He has made some of his best fights there, has the crowd with him solidly and can do no wrong. Louis wouldn't fight him there, Louis—or rather John Roxborough and Julian Black—would have no part of an agreement to meet the Nightstick in the Municipal Stadium. They thought he would be a soft touch in New York or anywhere else but that dynamite would lurk in a Philadelphia date with him.

Saddle Strap Sam Scans Seas and Sees Something

water-way which is, as always, a shorter route to Washington by water.

Cousin Casper chuckled. I imagine, when he wrote that they tried, in the accepted way, to break a bottle of Hancock cider as they launched the Bruce boat. The cider was either too hard or the boat's bow too soft and the tug (a tug is a small boat) went overboard without benefit of due dousing.

It seems a coincidence that the "official" launching of the Bruce boat which is expected to land him in the Senate, is taking just the reverse cruise of President Roosevelt's more famous down the bay and up the coast ride to purge the Senate of Millard Tydings.

The President came down the Potomac, dedicated the spot where the "over-the-bay bridge" was to be built, then sailed down around the peninsula where the Algonquin Hotel Morgans have a hotel at Scotland Beach.

In fact we figured he knew Davey Lewis' hopes were in the stew and the boat ride was just another boat ride. Even though we scarcely lifted an eye, somebody remarked as he took a "croaker" off his hook, "Wonder what job Lewis will get in the administration when his term in Congress is up? He surely's not going to beat Tydings, that's a lead pipe cinch. By the way, does anybody have an old 'sinker'?"

Somebody gave him an old sinker that was kind'a heavy. He threw it in on his line and soon he heaved in a barking dog-fish. Which goes to show you that fishing is like politics! The deeper you go into the water the more you come to wonder whether you're going to land a fish to fry or a dog-fish that'll bark right back at you.

Mt. Lake Junior Tennis Tourney Gets Underway

Harold Knotts, '38 Champion Gets Off To Win from Jerry O'Reilly

Oakland, Md., Aug. 24 (AP)—Ansel Knotts of Morgantown, W. Va., boys' champion last year, defeated Jerry O'Reilly of Brooklyn 6-3, 6-1 today in the opening round of the Mountain Lake Park Junior Tennis Tournament.

Knotts then polished off Jack Hart of Connelville, Pa., 6-1, 6-1 with little exertion.

More than 50 boys and girls, all under 19, are expected to participate before the tourney ends Friday.

Other scorers: Hart defeated Paul Ling, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., by default.

John Sincell, Pittsburgh, defeated Homer Cooper, Mountain Lake Park, Md., by default.

Joseph Neal, Huntington, W. Va., defeated Forrest Welling, Oakland, 6-0, 6-0.

Bob Bennett, Pittsburgh, defeated Welling 6-1, 6-0 and downed Richard Garrett, Morgantown, W. Va., 6-2, 6-3.

Joe, the copy boy:
Yeh, Joe, you'll probably have to go if we get mixed up in all this war stuff we're reading about, but we ain't mixed up in it yet.

Since the bookies in town are closed I'm still taken even money bets that the marriage license bureau's business is going to increase during the next month as it did during the last Japanese war scare.

And I'll take those odds-on bets that we'll have more birth announcements to publish next summer than last summer.

Joe, that may strike you as somewhat crude but so is the ill-concealed cowardice of some people who keep inquiring about the war news from Europe.

Meanwhile, if you can run the blockade, get me down a little lettuce on Schley Al in the fourth at Marlboro today if Johnny Shanks is aboard.

Grave Digger Is Put On Probation for Chaining Two Sons

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 24 (AP)—Because he committed a "technical assault and battery" in hanging heavy iron chains on the ankles of two teen-age wayward sons to keep them home and out of trouble, Joseph Naturile, forty-eight-year-old grave digger, was put on probation for a year today. Four minor children were taken out of the Naturile home—called a "modern black hole of Calcutta"—by Judge Henry S. Waldman—and put in charge of the State Board of Children's Guardians.

Those who became temporary wards of the state by order of the juvenile court judge in "an attempt to rehabilitate the home" included Dominic, 13, and Frank, 15, who were hobbled with chains after being put on probation for stealing auto accessories; Anna, 12, who is almost blind; and Michael, 8. There are three older children, and the mother is a paralytic.

Fairmont Man Is Police President

Erie, Pa., Aug. 24 (AP)—Henry B. Squires of Fairmont, W. Va., tonight was elected president of the National Fraternal Order of Police and Phoenix, Ariz., was selected for the 1940 convention. Squires defeated Ben K. Perry, of Gary, Ind., incumbent, for the post. Peter J. McCullough, 320-pound secretary, recently discharged from the Pittsburgh police force on charges he had left his beat for an hour, was defeated for re-election to the post he has held for nine years. Patrick Lynch of Cleveland was elected secretary.

McCullough's friends have claimed his dismissal was due to his fight against alleged political "machines" and for a revision of the trial board arrangement for policemen charged with misbehavior. Other officers elected included Edward Sperling, Allentown, Pa. Vice President; A. J. Courtney, Lorain, O., Grand Guard; Theodore J. Diott, Grand Rapids, Mich., Grand Conductor.

William F. Paca Is Taken by Death

Chestertown, Md., Aug. 24 (AP)—William F. Paca, 75, great-great-grandson of the Colonial Governor of Maryland whose name he bore, died suddenly Tuesday in a Wilmington, (Del.) hospital.

Until his retirement ten years ago, when he established his home at Chestertown, he was general manager of the Petroleum Telephone Company at Oil City, Pa.

Mrs. Paca, two daughters, Miss Dorothy of Chestertown, Mrs. Ruth Paca Woodburn of Franklin, Pa., and one son, Maj. William W. Paca, Yorktown, Va., survive him.

European Crisis Causes Leading Issues On Stock Market To Slump

War Fears and Peace Hopes Act as Conflicting Influences

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—War fears and peace hopes acted as conflicting influences in the stock market today and leading issues slumped, rallied and finally finished with the majority slightly under water.

In the erratic shifts prices tumbled one to more than five points in the first hour, then before mid-day negotiated a quick turnaround that reduced or erased losses. Transfers totaled 1,293,600 shares against 792,990 the day before.

Early stumbling blocks seen in the signing of the German-Russian non-aggression treaty, expectations of a quick Hitler ultimatum to Poland and over Danzig, a gloomy speech of Prime Minister Chamberlain before an emergency session of parliament, and huge troop mobilizations on European fronts.

Good business news at home was virtually ignored, although a more than seasonal climb in last week's freight loadings aided the rails.

Markets at London, Paris and Amsterdam broke sharply in the wake of news of the Nazi-Soviet coalition.

Aluminum Ltd. tumbled 5 1/2 in the curb. Down one to nearly three were Bell Aircraft, Carrier, Lake Shore and Jones & Laughlin.

Electric Bond & Share and Lockheed edged up. Turnover of 184,400 shares compared with 118,000 Wednesday.

"The Wizard of Oz" Now at the Maryland Theater

It was a genius for realistic imagination which prompted L. Frank Baum to write "The Wizard of Oz" and it is genius in all-age perfect entertainment that brings it to the motion picture screen. Those who saw the first showing of "The Wizard of Oz" last night at the Maryland theater witnessed one of the truly great pictures of all time.

The word "great" is all-embracing. "The Wizard of Oz" is great in entertainment, in satisfaction, in music, color photography, in costume, in performance—in fact, great in every department.

With rare genius, Producer Mervyn LeRoy took Baum's story, which is reported to have been read by eighty million persons since it was written forty years ago, kept the delightful flavor and exact story of the book, and added magnificence, beauty, life, humor and some of the year's best music.

When you see "The Wizard of Oz" you realize it had to be made in Technicolor. The effects are amazing. You know it had to have technical experts because the magic is startling. When you hear the luring music and clever lyrics you realize it had to have music and when you see Judy Garland, Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr, Jack Haley, Billy Burke, Margaret Hamilton, Charley Grapevin, Pat Walsh and Clara Blandick in their roles you know they could have been playing no one else.

Judy Garland as Dorothy gives the screen's best child performance. Frank Morgan was born to be the Wizard. Bolger as the Scarecrow, Haley as the Tin Woodman and Lahr as the Cowardly Lion all step into star ranks with their characterizations and never once do make-up handicaps the personalities which have made them popular. Billie Burke as Glinda the Good and Margaret Hamilton as the Wicked Witch are perfectly cast.

Victor Fleming's direction ranks with the superior work on "Captains Courageous" and "Test Pilot" and he gives this picture the same sentiment those films had.

Never before is it so apparent that the philosophy of Baum's original book is what made it beloved by millions. Anyone who misses "The Wizard of Oz" is depriving himself of the screen's outstanding entertainment to date.

Rogers Becomes Congressman To Help Ranchers

The most colorful Congressman ever to walk up the steps of the nation's capitol—a fearless, two-gun cowboy from the West!

That's Roy Rogers in the streamlined, action-packed motion picture, "Under Western Stars," coming today to the Garden Theatre.

Rogers portrays a son of the plains, elected to Congress to try to win legislation favorable to dust-bowl residents.

Rogers, color in "Under Western Stars" might be attributed partly to the campaign antics of his publicity manager and secretary, Smiley Burnette. The portly Smiley even goes to such extremes as to paste stickers on the backs of unsuspecting citizens whom he engages in conversation.

MENACE vs. ROMANCE

That master sleuth, Sherlock Holmes, is stalked again by the arch criminal, Moriarty, played by George Zucco, in "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," the new 20th Century-Fox mystery thriller opening Saturday at the Strand theater, while the happiness of Ida Lupino, a lady in love with Alan Marshall, is menaced by the super-crime of the century.

asks her finance in "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," 20th Century-Fox film coming tomorrow to the Strand theater, and it gives some hint of the thrills in store in this latest film about Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's famed sleuth. Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce play Holmes and Dr. Watson respectively, fresh from their recent portrayals of those roles in "The Hound of the Baskervilles." In the romantic parts Ida Lupino and Alan Marshall head the cast, which includes Terry Kilburn, George Zucco (as Moriarty, master criminal and Holmes' arch-enemy), Henry Stephenson and E. E. Clive.

Magnificent Film

One of the most magnificent motion pictures the screen has ever shown for the last times today at the Strand theater, Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Stanley and Livingstone," the 20th Century-Fox film, starring twice-Academy Award-winning Spencer Tracy as the heroic reporter-adventurer who found Livingstone, Nancy Kelly and Richard Greene are also starred at the head of a great cast.

Three years in the making, much of the film was shot in the actual locale in Africa.

West Virginia Helps To Tell the Story Of the Lost Colony

Roanoke Island, N. C., Aug. 23 (AP)—With the sons and daughters of North Carolina who are telling once more the story of the nation's "Lost Colony" is a West Virginian, Donald Somers, of Berkeley Springs, W. Va.

The "Lost Colony," an epic drama of the group of early settlers who under the guidance of Sir Walter Raleigh made the first permanent home in North Carolina, is in its third summer and Somers is appearing for his second year.

The West Virginian, who has had considerable experience on the New York stage plays the part of "Old Tom" and one of his dramatic moments in heralding the birth of Virginia Dare, the first white child born in this country.

ADVERTISING THAT PRODUCES CROWDS

The value of newspaper advertising has been proved so thoroughly, there is little reason for anyone doubting its superiority as the advertising medium.

No other medium has crowded retail stores like newspapers. No other medium has produced as many direct sales.

Even customers have learned that newspaper advertisements pull. When an ad is especially interesting, Mr. and Mrs. Shopper expect a mob, so shop early.

Why experiment when you know Times-News advertising sells?

CELANESE STATEMENT

The Company regrets that a part of the dealings of the Union leaders and the Company with Mr. Edward MacDonald, Commissioner of Conciliation of the Department of Labor, has been made public. In view of this publicity, it is, however, necessary and proper that the Company now make a full statement of the facts.

For about three weeks the Company has withheld publicity and has refrained from answering the multitude of charges made against it. Charges of violation of law have heretofore been ignored but will be herein answered. We have published one statement which is in every important respect identical with the letter which was delivered by the Company to the Union on the afternoon of August 4th. Aside from this publication, we have given the Cumberland community information only on the question of stock ownership. False and misleading charges of foreign ownership were made to a degree which we thought might cause embarrassment to persons other than the Company and for this reason the second statement was made. We are now compelled to state what has occurred in the conferences with the Government Conciliator in view of the partial publication given by the Union to these conciliation efforts.

Representatives of the Company met Mr. Edward MacDonald, Commissioner of Conciliation of the Department of Labor, in New York on August 11th, the appointment being arranged within an hour after Commissioner MacDonald's first request for an appointment. Thereafter, representatives of the Company had further conferences with Mr. MacDonald on August 17th and on August 22nd.

COMPANY'S PROPOSAL

Representatives of the Company have not at any time refused to meet representatives of the Union but did on August 17th give Mr. MacDonald a definite proposal for a meeting. This proposal is the matter referred to in the letter of the Union as "the position assumed by the Company." The Company proposed that the Union meet the Company in a conference upon the understanding that the first matter to be considered and disposed of would be the so-called recognition clause involving various forms of closed shop and various proposals relating to collection of dues. The Company further proposed that if an agreement were reached on this item, then other items would be considered. If no agreement could be reached on this item, then it would be impossible to have a contract and therefore futile to consider wages and other items.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

In this connection it is pertinent to point out that since the Union cancelled the last contract by notice effective August 1, 1938, which was confirmed by notice effective September 9, 1938, the Company representatives have had some thirty-eight meetings with the Union to discuss and negotiate the terms of a new contract, these meetings being in addition to some forty-four meetings held with various Shop Committees on grievance matters. This record shows that prior to the strike we have bargained, and since the strike have endeavored to bargain, in good faith with the Union. During the negotiations we bargained by meeting some of the Union demands, by offering counter-proposals on others and by reaching compromises on some. AN IMPASSE WAS, HOWEVER, REACHED AND THE STRIKE WAS CALLED PRINCIPALLY BECAUSE OF THE UNION'S INSISTENCE ON AND OUR REFUSAL TO AGREE TO A CLOSED SHOP IN ANY FORM OR TO AGREE TO COLLECTION OF DUES AND ASSESSMENTS BY THE COMPANY OR COMPULSION BY THE COMPANY ON EMPLOYEES IN THE PAYMENT OF UNION DUES AND ASSESSMENTS. WE HAVE BEEN AND ARE UNWILLING TO ASSUME THESE OBLIGATIONS. IN ADDITION TO THIS CLOSED SHOP OR SO-CALLED RECOGNITION ISSUE, THERE HAS BEEN ANOTHER ISSUE INVOLVING TECHNOLOGICAL CHANGES AND THE MATTER OF TRANSFERRING DISPLACED EMPLOYEES FROM ONE STATE TO ANOTHER, ON WHICH WE CANNOT AGREE TO THE UNION'S PROPOSALS, BUT ON WHICH WE HAVE BEEN NEGOTIATING AND MADE COUNTER-PROPOSALS. THE THIRD ISSUE IS THE MATTER OF WAGE RATES WHICH WE ARE NOW AND ALWAYS HAVE BEEN READY TO DISCUSS WHEN THERE IS SOME PROSPECT THAT THE FIRST ISSUE WILL NOT PREVENT THE MAKING OF A NEW CONTRACT.

THE MAJOR OBSTACLE

We feel that it is reasonable to suggest that the closed shop provision or the so-called recognition clause be disposed of first. IN FACT, THE NATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS BOARD HAS RULED THAT IT IS NOT UNREASONABLE FOR AN EMPLOYER TO DEMAND THAT THE SO-CALLED UNION SHOP PROVISION BE DISPOSED OF FIRST IN ORDER TO REMOVE THE MAJOR OBSTACLE IN THE WAY OF AN UNDERSTANDING.

We are advised that the National Labor Relations Act does not require us as a part of bargaining to agree to any particular terms. We have never been asked to sign a written open shop contract although we have tendered such a contract to the Union and have told them that a signed copy was ready for delivery to them when they would sign and deliver a copy to us.

The letter of the Union, as advertised by them, indicates a continuing desire to discuss all questions but no concern over the order in which each issue is settled. We feel that there is little hope of arriving at a contract in this way. The Company cannot make tenders on wages or other points, believing that it is making a contract only to find out later that the membership of the Union will be asked to reject the proposals because the so-called recognition clause is unsatisfactory.

We hope that conferences can be arranged and have no hesitancy in saying that the Company must follow in any such conference the position outlined in its statement heretofore published and in this statement. We believe that when this so-called recognition clause is settled an agreement can be reached on wages and other points.

State Police Smash Liquor Ring Operating in Five States

Five Men Nabbed After Three-Week Investigation

Bullet-Riddled Car Leads to Arrest of Charleston Mob

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The arrest of five men who the State Police said operated a liquor ring in five states was announced today, culminating three weeks of investigation which started with discovery of a bullet-riddled car.

The car was the one which led officers into Kentucky on a wild goose chase for Federal fugitives who overpowered their prison bus guards in Virginia in July 26.

Lieutenant James Fillingim and Trooper C. E. Musgrave identified their prisoners as:

Identify Prisoners
George Edward (Bus) Frazier, 27, and his brother, Robert, 23; Jimmy Dodd, 28; John J. Bumpus, 19; and Stanley Hamilton, 21, all of the Charleston section.

Three weeks ago a shot-marked car was found in a downtown garage.

Fillingim said it was the one upon which a Caltetaburg, Ky., policeman had fired the night of July 26 after officers were notified to blockade all roads in this area in hopes of trapping Federal fugitives.

The prisoners' getaway car had been found abandoned here a few hours before.

Frazier Drove Car

The lieutenant related George Frazier said he was driving the car, which had no connection with the fugitives. He eluded pursuing Kentucky officers and crossed back into West Virginia, returning to Charleston.

Fillingim said the gang operated out of a Charleston headquarters, transporting liquor from Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana to West Virginia and Ohio.

In addition, at least four car thefts have been traced to the defendants, Fillingim said. Two men still are sought for questioning.

Hearing Set

The arrested men, except George Frazier, waived to the grand jury on charges of auto theft filed by Fillingim and Frazier's hearing was set for September 5 before Justice H. G. Thayer. Frazier and his brother were remanded to jail in default of bond.

Hamilton furnished bond of $5,000 before Justice Edwin S. Watson and Dodd and Bumpus gained their release on bond of $1,000 each.

Trooper Musgrave said George Frazier was released recently from the State Penitentiary, to which he was sentenced for from six to 20 years for holding up the toll-house at the Ft. Pleasant Bridge. Bob Frazier has served two Federal sentences for liquor violations, Musgrave added.

Spud Festival Starts At Point Pleasant

Point Pleasant, W. Va., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The annual Mason County Potato Festival, honoring this section's principal agricultural product, officially got under way tonight as the "Potato Bug" in which Marion Wedge seeks a solo endurance record droned overhead.

Mayor B. W. Krodell presented the key of the city tonight to the blonde Potato Queen, June Ritchie of Ravenwood. The remainder of the activities were informal.

The 23-year-old Wedge, who will try to stay in the air 50 hours, took off at 3:55 p. m. from the Twin Cities Airport near Gallipolis in his little cabin monoplane. He plans to refuel the first time tomorrow morning.

The Potato King will be chosen in judging tomorrow and during the evening the Queen will be crowned. Contests on the festival program will continue through tomorrow and Saturday.

Holden, Pine Plains, N. Y., to Howard D. Naylor, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Naylor, Pennington street, Oakland.

The wedding took place on February 18, 1939, in Fairmont, W. Va., with Rev. Denver C. Pickens, D. D., pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating.

The marriage of the young people is the result of a school romance. The bride is a junior student, while the groom was graduated this June from West Virginia Wesleyan college, Buckhannon.

Since returning to Oakland Mr. Naylor has been employed in the A. D. Naylor and Company establishment.

Mrs. Naylor is planning to arrive in Oakland at an early date when the couple will establish a home here.

Hold Double Wedding

A double wedding was performed last Friday evening at 9 p. m. in St. John's Lutheran church at Red house by Rev. A. K. Jones, pastor. Miss Lila Calhoun, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Croner Calhoun, near Gortner, became the bride of Henry A. Schmidt, Oakland, a son of Mr. Carl Schmidt, of Gnezy Church.

Miss Lena Bramble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Blamie, Horseshoe Run, W. Va., also became the bride of Earl Sebold, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sebold, McHenry.

A large number of relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony. Miss Sarah Stanton played the wedding march. The brides were attired in white silk gowns with corsages of red roses and baby breath. The grooms wore business suits.

Mrs. Schmidt is a graduate of Oakland High school and the Pennsylvania School of Beauty Culture, Uniontown, Pa., and is employed in the Owens' Beauty Shop. Mr. Schmidt is connected with the People's Economy Market in Oakland.

Mrs. Sebold is a graduate of Aurora High School and has been employed at the William-James hotel. Mr. Sebold is in the employ of the State Roads Commission at Oakland.

Following the ceremony both couples left for a trip to Niagara Falls and the New York World's Fair. They will reside in Mountain Lake Park.

Wins Promotion

Mr. James B. Martin, Baltimore, former Oakland resident, who has been a dining car steward for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for the past ten years, has been named inspector of dining cars. His wife, the former Miss Ruth Lawton, and family, have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Lawton, here for the past two weeks or more.

Brief Mention

Hubert M. Bowman, local Christian dealer, McHenry, has sold a new 17-foot utility boat to Frank A. Stein, Cumberland. Mr. Stein will keep his new boat at his summer home at Deep Creek Lake, near Oakland. The boat is powered with a 95-horsepower engine and attains a speed of 32 miles per hour.

Mrs. D. Edward Offutt and son, Daniel, have returned from Bayview Beach, Long Island, where they had spent the past seven weeks. While at Bayview Beach Mrs. Offutt commuted to New Haven, Conn., where she took instructions in physical culture from Dr. L. H. Lockwood, of Yale University.

C. H. Browning, another member of the County Commissioners, also announced that the Board had hired the firm of Woodson and Benson, certified public accountants, of Baltimore, to audit the books of the county treasurer and county commissioners, as a routine procedure in order to get the books set up properly in preparation for the 1940 levy.

Transfer Court

Clarksburg, Aug. 24.—(AP)—One defendant posted bond and another applicant was granted final papers for citizenship in Federal court here today as arrangements were completed for transferring the court to Fairmont for criminal proceedings starting Monday.

Isaac Maxwell Hess of Lumberport, indicted on postal violation charges, posted $1,000 bond for his appearance Monday at Fairmont. John Marzec of Clarksburg was granted final naturalization papers. Civil trials will start in Clarksburg, Sept. 11.

Approximately 1,400 sailors are required to man a modern battleship.

Car Mows Down Young Farmer Boy In Tucker County

Jimmy Poling Is Second Traffic Fatality in Two Days

Parsons, W. Va., Aug. 24.—Tucker county chalked up its second fatal auto accident today when a small lad of 12 years died here in the Tucker County Hospital.

The boy was Jimmy Poling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Artie Poling, of Pifer Mountain, Clover district.

Sheriff Stark Cokerly and Constable D. E. Crosten, who investigated the accident, said the lad was hit about 9 o'clock last night while walking along the highway near St. George, by a car driven by Harry King, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde King, of this city.

The officers said King was driving with no lights on his car. The Poling boy was hurled for several feet, receiving a fractured skull and right leg mangled.

The leg was amputated in the hospital here in an effort to save the child's life, but the youth died at 10 a. m.

He had been visiting with his uncle, Parker Poling, who lives on a farm near this city, and was walking back to his home when the car driven by King was coming from St. George to Parsons.

The lad apparently failed to notice the approaching car. The officers said King was driving in the middle of the road. No action has yet been taken against the driver, the officers said. The child will be buried in the Pifer Mountain cemetery. The parents live on a farm in Clover district. King, driver of the car, also is a farmer.

The other fatally injured lad was Robert Raese, Jr., age two and one-half years, of Davis, who was hit by a truck. Funeral rites were held this afternoon at the home of C. W. Raese in Davis by Rev. Robert O. Lucke, of the Parsons Presbyterian church, and Rev. Andrew B. Mann, of the Thomas Presbyterian church, followed by burial in the Davis cemetery. The child died of a fracture near the base of the skull.

State Trooper R. G. Coen, who questioned Irvin S. Iden, tobacco salesman of Davis and Morgantown, after Iden had called for state police investigation, said he did not expect any charges to be filed. Playmates said Iden's car had hit the Raese child. Iden said he did not know he had struck the child and called the officers.

Hambleton Nursery Wins Baby Parade

Winners in the baby parade here yesterday on the opening day of the Tucker County Fair were announced today as follows:

First prize—Hambleton nursery children, dressed to represent Mother Goose rhymes; second prize—Ethna Ball Chewing; third prize—Karen Teier, assisted by Rosaline and Laura Vere Johnson; fourth prize—Harper Hamby; fifth prize—Rebecca Ann Smith; sixth prize—George Adams; seventh prize—Jack W. Miller; eighth prize—twin girls of Mr. and Mrs. Gay Nestor.

A parade by fire departments from Tucker and nearby counties will be held Friday afternoon. Band concerts and fireworks will be an evening attraction each night of the Fair, which will close Saturday night. Large numbers are attending the Fair each day.

Students To Register

Jason Wolford, principal of the Parsons high school, announces that students will be registered next week at the old high school building for the coming school term.

Out of town students will be registered August 28, freshmen and sophomores on August 29, juniors and seniors on August 30. The new high school building will be in readiness for the school term which opens on September 11.

Axe Slips

Luke Mullenax, 20, farmer of Hambleton, route 1, is a patient here in the Tucker County Hospital, suffering from a badly cut leg.

He said an axe slipped while he was chopping wood near his home and inflicted a deep gash in his leg. He will be in the hospital for several days.

Family in Hospital

Four tonsil operations were performed yesterday here in the Tucker County Hospital, including three in one family from Keyser. They were Joretta, Gerald and Carlisle Grubb, children of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Grubb, Keyser, and Miss Jane Ann Griffith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Griffith, Hambleton. All are reported doing nicely.

Davis Girl Marries

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Tewell, Davis, of the marriage of their daughter, Pauline, to Wilbur Richardson, of Danville, Va. The ceremony was performed last Saturday at Winchester, Va., by the Rev. S. H. Essex, Baptist pastor. The bride is well known in Tucker county and is a graduate of the Davis high school. They will reside at Kembridge, Va., where Mrs. Jason Wolford.

TAKING "GUINEA PIG" CENSUS

By way of a rehearsal for the 1940 census, a test census is taken in St. Joseph and Marshall counties, Ind., to try out the efficacy of a set of test questions. If answers permit drawing of a cross-section picture of the state of the nation, they will be used in the big census next year. Enumerator John McDonald is shown giving Mrs. Russell Weesner, of South Bend, the quiz. She is mother of 16 children, six of whom are shown.

Vandalism Sweep WPA Playground At Lonaconing

Mob of Boys Pilage Jackson Street Play Center

Lonaconing, Aug. 24.—Vandalism prevailed today at noon at the WPA supervised playground at the Jackson street school. Authorities have been asked to investigate.

According to Mrs. Katherine Freeman and George E. Foote, playground leaders, that from 12 to 1 o'clock, a group of boys cut down the children's swing, ruined the horseshoe pitching pit and an outdoor board game. After damaging of the board game, the boys got rid of the horseshoes. The playground leaders and children at this time had gone to their respective homes for lunch.

This is the first real act of vandalism at the local playground since it was opened early this summer.

Announce Marriage

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Whitfield, of Church street, this place, of the marriage of their daughter, Marion Worgan Whitfield, to Edward Woolverton Shepherd, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Shepherd, Pittsburgh, Pa. The couple were married Wednesday morning in the manse of the First Presbyterian Church, by the Rev. Selten C. Adams, pastor.

The attendants were Miss Ida Mae Riley, Baltimore, a classmate of the bride at Western Maryland College, and James Cronin, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The bride was attired in green crepe and wore a corsage of Tullahoma roses. Miss Riley wore teal blue crepe and a corsage of red tea roses. The mother of the bride wore fuchsia and the mother of the bridegroom a powder blue gown.

Mrs. Shepherd is a graduate of Central High School, Western Maryland College and Duff's Iron City College, Pittsburgh, and is a member of the faculty of Duff's College.

Mr. Shepherd is a graduate of Swinsvale High School and the University of Pittsburgh and is an industrial engineer engaged in sales engineering.

Barton Girl Marries

The marriage of Miss Ethlyn E. Shaw, Barton, daughter of Mrs. Morris Metz and the late Orbie Shaw, to Dr. Allen M. Perry, Kenwood, Md., which was solemnized during the month of July at the home of the bridegroom's parents in Kenwood, has just been announced.

Mrs. Perry was graduated from the Barton High School, and then underwent training at the Nurses Training School of the Church Home and Infirmary, in Baltimore. Dr. Perry is a member of the staff of Dr. Bennett, orthopedic surgeon of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

The couple returned recently from a honeymoon in the New England

Mineral County Council Will Sponsor 7-Day Program

Keyser, W. Va., Aug. 24.—Selby Jacobs, secretary of the Mineral County Safety Council, this morning announced that plans are complete for the observance here of the state-wide Safety Week, embracing the period from September 3 to 10.

The first public meeting in the newly-completed gymnasium at the rear of the Keyser Junior High School will be held in connection with the observance here of Safety Week when H. G. Houtz, mining engineer of the State Department of Mines speaks Friday, September 8.

Jacobs said other plans include a safety parade, and the "planting" of wrecked automobiles at danger-spots in the city. Ministers have been requested to deliver sermons in keeping with the observance of Safety Week Sunday, September 3, Jacobs stated today.

New Monday special committees appointed by cooperating civic groups are scheduled to meet with Mayor John C. Freeland at the city offices to make final arrangements for the safety week program.

The safety week plan is sponsored by the State Department of Public Safety, which has adopted for its slogan, "No deaths over the Labor Day week end."

Substitutes Listed

Thirty-four substitute teachers today were named as eligible for service in county elementary and high schools for the coming year, according to an announcement by County Superintendent Paul C. Rouzer. The list includes one Cumberland woman—Mary Radcliffe.

Salaries for substitute teachers were set at $3.50 a day for elementary school service, and $4 a day for high school teaching.

Regular teachers absent because of sickness will be paid one dollar per day up to twenty days, the prepared bulletin said the board decided.

A Clarksburg furniture firm, Kyle and Company, was awarded a contract for 2,500 chairs for use in the county schools, at a price of $4.25.

Fees for the use of school buildings by outside organizations were set by the board members, ranging from a $5 charge, payable to the board, and a $2 janitor fee for the use of the auditorium or gymnasium here to a $25 fee payable to the board for the use of any school building for dances or political meetings.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 8 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorder, may be the cause of nagging headache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of sleep and energy, graying of hair, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Cat Doan's Pills.

Green To Build New Gas Station At Eckhart Flat

County Commissioner Calls for Bids on Project

Frostburg, Aug. 24—County Commissioner S. W. Green, proprietor of the Green Chevrolet garage, this city, announced today that he has plans drawn on which bids have been requested from leading contractors for the construction of a new garage and service station on the north side of Eckhart Flat opposite Frostburg new high school.

The building is to be of brick and concrete block and will have a frontage of 100 feet and depth of 150 feet.

Mr. Green owns four 50 foot lots on Eckhart Flat which gives him a frontage of 200 feet on the main highway. He also owns the same number of lots facing Mt. Pleasant street.

Mr. Green stated today that inasmuch as he owned the property before the school board bought the land on the opposite side of the pike, the construction of the proposed garage will not be subject to a provision of the school board's deed that no business buildings will be permitted within four hundred feet of the property lines of the school grounds which front on Eckhart Flat for a distance of about 700 feet.

Harvest Home Festival Planned for Sunday

The annual Harvest Home Festival of Salem Reformed Church, this city, will be observed Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

The church altar will be decorated with fruits and vegetables and a special sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Karl H. Beck whose topic will be "Figs and Fashions."

The last of the outdoor vesper services sponsored by the church will be held 8:30 p. m. at Swaiger's Dam, New Germany. The young ladies of Mrs. John Hafer's Sunday school class, in camp at New Germany, are arranging a "Galilee Service" to which the public is invited.

Due to the fact that some will desire to take supper at the camp a caravan of motor cars will leave Salem Church, Broadway at 5:30 p. m. Anyone wishing transportation is invited to speak to the pastor not later than noon Sunday.

Plan Softball Game

Two softball teams of Frostburg will play a softball marathon at the State Teachers College athletic field Saturday, August 26. The teams have agreed to play 11 hours and 20 minutes which is the duration of a similar marathon played in Cumberland.

The contesting teams will be the Frostburg Sluggers, managed by Fred A. Entler, and the Centre Street Wildcats, managed by Laurence Middleton. The game will get underway at 8:05 a. m. and continue until 7:25 p. m.

The promoters of the marathon are eager to have all softball supporters and other athletic enthusiasts attend at least a part of the contest.

Governor Applies For WPA Projects

Requests Share of Money for Joint State, Government Projects

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 2 (AP)—The Board of Public Works, at the request of Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor, today notified the Federal Works Project Administration that Maryland desired to participate in future WPA projects, but reserved the right to decide to which projects the state will contribute funds.

Under the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act of 1933 none of the funds made available can be used after August 31 for the operation of any project sponsored solely by the WPA.

Governor O'Connor pointed out that the action of the Works Board left the "door open" for the state to get the benefit of future WPA projects by agreeing to those mutually acceptable to the Federal agency and the State.

The board request dealt specifically with a state-wide project at areas where emergency work is needed because of floods, storms, fire, earthquake, drought or similar conditions. Such a project had been carried by the WPA for Maryland and would have been lost unless the state had acted.

Under this project, to be invoked as needed, the State would contribute $58,890 or 25.2 per cent and the Federal Government $174,820 or 74.8 per cent.

Of this amount $172,820 in Federal funds would be used for labor, with the State paying $12,400 for superintendents, and $46,490 for equipment. The Federal government would spend $2,500 for equipment.

Fitzgerald and Tabler Seeking Legion Office

Baltimore, Aug. 24 (AP)—Behind a front peopled with guerrilla warriors armed with convention gas, the Maryland Department of the American Legion formed skirmish lines tonight to elect a state commander.

Five hundred delegates will make nominations tomorrow but tonight there was strenuous campaigning for two favorites, James Fitzgerald of the Chevy Chase-Bethesda post, a Washington attorney; and W. Ray Tabler, Centreville banker and past commander of the Jeff Davis post of that Eastern Shore city.

Fitzgerald, 47, is a past department vice commander of the Southern Maryland district and became prominent in Legion circles for leading membership drives. Tabler has been active in the junior legion program, Americanism and rehabilitation of veterans.

Elections will be held Saturday, final day of the convention which is expected to bring more than 5,000 persons here.

The annual banquet, dance and entertainment tonight didn't permit speech making but campaigning went on in quiet corners.

A parade will be held tomorrow night.

The Polish press emphasized Poland's unwavering determination to defend her "rights and territory," regardless of consequences.

"Poland is ready," declared a typical newspaper headline. "We answer with contempt the bluff of Hitler. Any invasion will be met with guns."

Important to Poland was whether Polish customs rights would be interfered with by the newly proclaimed change in the status of the free city through the election of Albert Forster as chief of state.

It was officially announced that all leave for government officials and employees had been cancelled.

On the more hopeful side of Polish-German relations there was the release of twenty-four men arrested last night by Danzig police, and release in Germany of a Polish diplomatic courier who was detained on Wednesday.

Reports by the German press agency of mass concentration of Polish troops around Danzig were gentled in responsible quarters.

Outwardly Poland remained calm. But the tension was apparent. It could be seen in the faces of the groups conversing on street corners and in cafes. There was only one topic of conversation—the imminent possibility of war.

Roosevelt Makes Appeal to Hitler Polish President

peace—which is the cause of humanity itself—rises above all other considerations. I am again addressing myself to you with the hope that the war which impends and the consequent disaster to all peoples everywhere may yet be averted."

Mr. Roosevelt told Hitler further: "The people of the United States are as one in their opposition to policies of military conquest and domination. They are as one in rejecting the thesis that any ruler, or any people possess the right to achieve their ends or objectives through the taking of a countless millions of people into war and which will bring distress and suffering to every nation of the world, belligerent and neutral, when such ends and objectives, so far as they are just and reasonable, can be satisfied through processes of peaceful negotiation or by resort to judicial arbitration."

Berlin, Aug. 24 (AP)—"The gentlemen across the street have other things to do than to bother about appeals and actions of Mr. Roosevelt," was the caustic comment of a government spokesman when asked to comment on the president's message to King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy and his intention to call a special session of Congress.

He was referring to Adolf Hitler, Von Ribbentrop, Goering, Goebbels, and others in conference at the Reichs Chancellery when he referred to the "gentlemen across the street."

He said nobody in authority tonight would be available to say anything about the Roosevelt message.

King Emanuele Silent

Rome, Aug. 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt's appeal to King Vittorio Emanuele to use his influence for a peaceful solution of Europe's crisis was received today in official silence.

There was no immediate indication of the King's reply to the appeal, delivered orally by Ambassador William Phillips at the royal summer residence at Sant' Anna Di Valderi, or whether the King's influence, if exerted, could avert a threatened conflict over Germany's demands upon Poland.

While American quarters emphasized the plea was addressed "solely to the King," it was communicated also to Premier Mussolini shortly after Il Duce had been in consultation with his military chiefs on war measures.

Two Men Killed in Auto-Truck Crash

Elkton, Md., Aug. 2 (AP)—A coroner's inquest will be held tomorrow night in the death of Irving Weintraub, 24 (301 W. Broadway), Baltimore, and John E. Dunn, a private stationed at Fort Hoyle, who were killed early today.

State police detained Fred Peterson, Arapahoe, N. C., but permitted his produce laden truck to be driven by his helper to New York.

Police said Weintraub was driving his automobile toward Baltimore on Route 40 near Perryville when he stopped to pick up the soldier.

A few miles away, police said, his car left the concrete road and in steering it back from the dirt shoulder, Weintraub appeared to have crashed it into the front wheels of the truck. Both were thrown from the car and instantly killed by the truck's rear wheels.

The inquest will be held at North East.

One County Keeps State Road System

Others Will Resume Old Method of Upkeep of Highways

Baltimore, Aug. 24 (AP)—One of nine Maryland counties empowered to regain control of their county roads has decided to continue the present system of state maintenance.

Chairman Ezra B. Whitman of the State Roads Commission said Prince George's county had written that it would not take over control of its own roads October 1. Prior to 1933 all counties maintained their own roads and the bill transferring control to the state was bitterly fought.

Whitman said five other counties would definitely take over their own roads at the end of this fiscal year. He listed them as Montgomery, which has written the Commission it wanted to take the control; Frederick, directed by the last legislature to take control; and Baltimore, Anne Arundel and Harford, which were exempted from the 1933 act and have continued their control.

Whitman said Washington County Commissioners had discussed the road situation with the roads commission but had not announced a decision on whether they would take control. Nothing has been heard from Howard and Cecil county, he added.

The chairman said the commission had turned down a request by Garrett county that it be given control of its roads. He said Garrett was not one of the counties listed in the act. Blaine Giessman, president of the county commissioners, said the application was made under another section of the law instructing the counties to make application by September 1 if they wanted to take back road control.

Police Slayer Sent To Insane Hospital

Washington, Pa., Aug. 24 (AP)—Termed a "menace to society" by a sanity commission, Frank Palanzo was committed today to the Fairview hospital for criminally insane for the shotgun slaying of State motor police corporal George D. Naughton last Jan. 30.

The commission told Judge Carl E. Gibson, who ordered commitment, that Palanzo was afflicted with criminal tendencies and might at any time become violently and criminally insane. The forty-seven-year-old examiner had been held in the Washington county jail since his arrest on a murder charge.

Defying attempts of police to arrest him on a charge of threatening a neighbor with firearms, Palanzo barricaded himself in a boarding house at Clarksburg and fired twice at Naughton as the officer walked up a stairway, calling to Palanzo to "talk it over."

Celanese Hearing Still Goes On after 11 Hours

Union Attempting To Prove Trouble No Labor Dispute

Dundon Is Grilled For More Than Hour By Company Lawyers

The State Unemployment Compensation Board had before it last night a mass of testimony concerning the "stoppage of work" at the Celanese plant—and prepared to hear more at 9 a. m. today.

Witnesses for Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, sought to show that the stoppage is not a strike and that it does not exist as a result of a labor dispute.

Unionists Cross-questioned

Although no witnesses placed on the stand by counsel for the Celanese Corporation testified directly concerning the matter of a labor dispute, several of them asserted that it was a voluntary stoppage by some of the workers, or a walk-out. In addition, counsel for the company sought by cross-examination to force union leaders to admit that the union called the stoppage.

The unemployment compensation act provides, in effect, that compensation shall not be paid to workers whose "unemployment is due to a stoppage of work which exists because of a labor dispute."

Nine Witnesses Appear

A total of nine witnesses testified during the eleven-hour hearing in the Circuit courtroom here. More than 200 persons jammed the courtroom, many of them standing throughout the day and evening as every available seat was taken, including those in the jury box.

The hearing convened at 10 a. m. and adjourned at 10:45 p. m., to resume this morning again at 9 a. m. Less than an hour was taken out for lunch, but there was a recess of ninety minutes for dinner.

The entire morning and part of the afternoon were devoted to testimony by Union President James A. Dundon, who was on the stand for four hours.

Dundon's Letter Figures

Counsel for the company made much of Dundon's letter to Federal Conciliator Edward MacDonald (reproduced in a union advertisement in the daily press here), calling attention to his use of the words, "present controversy," "present dispute," and "present misunderstanding."

After Dundon conceded that the copy of the ad introduced by the company was a true copy, Company Attorney Dorsey Watkins asked: "By 'present dispute' you mean the failure to reach an agreement in the conference of August 3 on the questions of technological unemployment, wages, and recognition?"

Dundon On Stand Four Hours

To which the union president replied: "That is right."

"That's all," said Watkins, and Dundon's grueling four hours were at an end at 2:45 p. m.

Company counsel stressed, too, a statement attributed to Dundon in The Cumberland News of August 8, the morning after the stoppage, which read as follows:

Statement at Issue

"The local executive board has, due to the refusal of the Celanese Corporation of America to negotiate an agreement with Local 1874 in good faith, voted a complete stoppage of work until a satisfactory agreement has been reached."

"Did you make that statement?" Dundon was asked.

"Possibly so," he replied at first. Then, after studying the clipping shown him by Watkins:

"I can't recall making any statement like that."

"Couldn't Say"

Pressed for an unequivocal answer, Dundon finally replied, "I couldn't say."

(The statement bearing Dundon's name, was presented to The News in writing by union officials.)

The union president insisted, however, that no such vote had been taken by the executive board.

At the time the statement was issued, he said, the board couldn't

UNION PRESIDENT TESTIFIES—James A. Dundon, Celanese union president, was on the witness stand four hours yesterday attempting to convince the Unemployment Compensation Board that the trouble at Celanese is not a "labor dispute." At right, Dundon enjoys one of the day's few laughs with the crowded court room. At left, Dundon attempts to explain to Company Attorney Dorsey Watkins why he didn't "admit" there was a labor dispute when he issued a statement to the papers the night of the shutdown saying, "The local executive board has, due to the refusal of the Celanese Corporation of America to negotiate an agreement with Local 1874 in good faith, voted a complete stoppage of work until a satisfactory agreement has been reached."—News Staff Photos.

Must Prove Lockout To Get Compensation

The State Unemployment Compensation Board yesterday took official and public notice of petitions asking them to grant compensation to idle Celanese workers and stated flatly that the board could decide the issue only on the basis of the law and the facts.

The full statement of policy follows: "The Board would like to acknowledge publicly the receipt of a number of appeals by letter and telegrams from a large number of prominent persons and business houses of this city and nearby communities requesting that benefits be paid the employees of the Celanese Corporation."

vote a stoppage since the stoppage "was already a fact."

"The management had shut down the machines and locked the gates," he declared.

Denies Admitting Strike

Earlier, Dundon had emphatically denied that he admitted to company officials on the night of August 4 that the stoppage was a "strike," as claimed in the brief submitted to the board by the company.

"What is this—a strike?" Dundon said he was asked by Edward R. Allan, personnel superintendent of the company. To which he said he replied:

"Well, you will probably call it a strike. You can call it whatever you like."

"We Call It Stoppage"

"But we call it a stoppage of work forced upon the workers by the refusal of the company to sit down and bargain with the workers and by the action of the management's representatives—superintendents—in shutting off the machinery."

Dundon's testimony on this point was substantially corroborated by

"It ought to be understood in the beginning that the Board's position in this matter is clear and definite that we are to determine by the facts presented here today whether or not the stoppage of work at the Celanese plant is caused by a labor dispute or not. If it is found that the stoppage of work, in our opinion, is due to a labor dispute, then we must, under the Maryland law, deny benefits to the claimants. On the contrary, if it is found that the stoppage of work is due to a lockout on the part of the Celanese Corporation, then benefits will be paid promptly to all claimants that are eligible."

Union Business Agent Clyde D. Lucas and Union Committeeman William G. O'Rourke.

O'Rourke said, too, that Allan declared at that time that the company did not intend to resume operations. This point was not touched upon by either Dundon or Lucas, however.

"Closed Shop No Major Issue"

On his direct examination by Union Counsel I. Duke Avnet, Dundon took issue with company statements in local newspapers indicating negotiations were broken off because of the union's insistence on some form of "closed shop."

The union was "least interested" in the closed shop proposal, Dundon stated, adding that it was "never a major issue."

Closed Shop Bargaining Point The shop president explained that the union refused, however, to concede to the company its willingness to accept the former recognition provision unless a "satisfactory" agreement was reached on the question of displacement of workers by machinery and wage increases.

(The former recognition clause recognized the union as sole collective bargaining agent under the National Labor Relations Act.)

Subjected to a rigorous cross-examination on negotiations on the recognition clause, Dundon stoutly maintained that negotiating conferences did not break off on the question.

"Not Collective Bargaining" He repeated again that the former recognition provision would be acceptable provided the company offered a "satisfactory solution" to the other matters in dispute.

The union head said the union could not agree to accept the recognition proposal "as long as the other two questions were in dispute."

"That would not be collective bargaining," Dundon asserted.

Protection "Chief Point" Reviewing in considerable detail negotiations for a new contract after the union asked termination of the old agreement, Dundon declared emphatically that the matter of technological changes was the "chief point," and stated that "other issues were of lesser importance."

In his statements concerning negotiations, Dundon hit frequently at what he termed "passing the buck" by company officials. He re-

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

Said a young man trying to make a living yesterday: "If the young men of this generation have to go to war, they certainly are getting a lousy deal. First the depression knocked the props out from under most of them."

If we have to go to war, we'd say it was a lousy break, with or without the depression counted. And of course there's the depression which would probably follow any war boom.

— o —

A man was up in court the other day for shooting a gun at his wife in a chase around the house, then throwing her down on the kitchen floor so hard it knocked her out.

The young attorney defending the husband decided it would be good tactics to put the complaining wife on the defensive herself.

After a couple of routine questions, he glowered down at the frail woman and shouted, "Did you ever beat up your husband, here?"

"Laws no," said the woman. "I never did. My motto has always been that a good run is better than a bad stand."

That stopped the young attorney. It would probably have stopped many an older attorney, too, except that attorneys soon learn to remain oblivious of the fact that they are often made to appear ridiculous.

— o —

The misadvised wife's motto would be a good solution for the European problem, except that Poland is faced with the decision of making a bad run for it or a bad stand.

We always have a hectic time around this office when there's a prizefight going on, because people keep calling up to know when the fight's going to start, and what radio station they can listen to, and who won, and why.

Well, the European situation has about reached that stage now, and the calls are coming in.

A gentleman called in last night in a high-pitched voice and asks, "Are they fightin' yet?" We were happy to tell him at the time that they weren't fightin' yet. That is, the real butchery wasn't on.

— o —

Something the foreign correspondents have overlooked is whether the workers of the various countries are going to get their unemployment insurance if they have to leave their work benches and go to the trenches.

But then that really depends on whether Hitler decides to call it a war or merely a "stoppage of peace."

Tiny Girl Twins Rushed To Hospital Incubator

Twin girls, born premature early last night in Wiley Ford, W. Va., were rushed here to Allegheny hospital after birth and placed in an incubator.

The infants were born to Ann Keplinger, 32, wife of Leo Keplinger, 24, a Wiley Ford taxi cab driver, at their home.

Nurses did not want to disturb the tiny youngsters even long enough to weigh them last night. But they estimated that one weighed about four pounds and the other two pounds. Both are about nine inches from head to foot.

Dr. F. A. G. Murray, of Cumberland, was called to the Keplinger residence around 6 p. m. yesterday. When he arrived at the Wiley Ford home the first baby had already been born.

Neighbors Help

Women neighbors of the Keplingers assisted in the first birth which took place at 6:05 p. m. Dr. Murray said. He arrived in time to deliver the second girl at 6:50 o'clock.

Both infants were brought to the hospital by their father in his taxi cab. They were admitted to the hospital in a cardboard box, wrapped in warm blankets surrounded by hot water bottles.

Both Doing Fine

They were immediately placed in an incubator upon their arrival, according to Dr. Murray's orders. Attendants reported both tiny infants as "doing fine" last night. Mrs. Keplinger, who remained in Wiley Ford, was said to be "coming along nicely."

Mr. Keplinger returned home to his wife after seeing that their daughters were being well cared for. The Keplingers have one other child, another girl, three years old.

Deaths

Michael Newman

Funeral services for Michael Newman, 88-year-old resident of the Allegheny County Home who died Wednesday at Memorial hospital, were conducted yesterday at St. Patrick's Catholic church.

Mr. Newman was a native of Pennsylvania. He was a son of the late Thomas and Anna Ward Newman.

Burial was in the church cemetery.

Harry K. Higgins

Harry K. Higgins, son of Harry A. Higgins, 1221 Lexington avenue, died Wednesday at City hospital, Baltimore. He was 19.

Young Higgins was a printer. Surviving, besides his father, are his step-mother, Mrs. Jesse Brant Higgins; three brothers, George, Floyd, and Arthur Higgins; and three sisters, Mrs. Thelma M. Mauk, Mrs. Ethel R. Harvey, and Miss Violet B. Higgins, all of Cumberland.

The body was brought to Cumberland to his home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brooke

Mrs. Elizabeth Brooke, widow of Joseph Brooke, died recently at Coal City, Ill. She was 84.

Mrs. Brooke was born in Eckhart. She was a daughter of the late Thomas and Janet Connor, natives of Scotland. She left this section 35 years ago.

Mrs. Clara Connors Wilt

Mrs. Clara Connors Wilt died last night at her home at 209 Knox street after a long illness. She had returned to her home last week after a stay at Allegheny hospital. She was 57.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Laura Belle Connors, Palmar, Pa.; two sons, Harvey and Calvin Connors, both of Palmar, Pa.; a brother, Cleveland Simmons, of Romney, W. Va.; and two sisters, Mrs. Charles Moore and Mrs. Sally Corbin, both of Romney.

Mayors Await Company Answer On Peace Plan

Union Is Prepared To Meet Management, Dundon Declares

Efforts by nine mayors in the Celanese strike area to affect a conciliation between the corporation and the union yesterday resulted in an immediate reply from James Dundon, president of Local 1874. Mayor Harry Irvine reported last night.

Acknowledging the mayors' resolution urging a conference between the two warring factions, Dundon enclosed a telegram sent to the corporation in which the union offered to meet company officials for the purpose of "effecting a settlement."

Mayor Irvine reported that he had not received a reply from the corporation last night.

Company Gets Letter Late

Queried on the subject, C. D. Walton, works manager of the Cumberland plant, replied that he did not receive his copy of the resolution until yesterday afternoon. The resolution was sent to the New York offices of the corporation at once, he said.

The union's reply came in answer to the resolution drawn up last night by the mayors of six near-by Maryland cities and three West Virginia communities.

The mayors passed a resolution urging that the union and corporation get together and settle their difficulties.

Dundon's answer to the mayors was a copy of the telegram he sent to the corporation yesterday. Enclosed with the copy of the telegram was a note which read: "This is to acknowledge the resolution of the mayors' conference. Please be advised that the following telegram has been sent to the corporation."

The union telegram, which was sent to Celanese offices in New York yesterday at 2 p. m., read:

"As the result of an appeal embodied in a resolution at a conference of mayors representative of local communities addressed to us today, we are herewith advising you that we are prepared to meet in conference with officials of your corporation for the purpose of effecting a settlement of the present controversy at a time and place that will be satisfactory to the corporation."

Mayors' Resolution

In the resolution drawn up by the mayors which was released yesterday morning, the heads of nine municipalities stated that "it is the opinion of the aforesaid mayors of the various communities herein represented, according to the statements by both the Celanese Corporation of America officials and Local 1874, that they are men-broad and big enough to realize the seriousness of this situation from the standpoint of want and hardships imposed upon the people we represent."

"And it is our earnest hope and wish that if the statements by both sides published in the evening press of this date are true, then there is nothing in the way of a conference whereby this matter can be settled thoroughly and beneficially for everyone concerned, without, either side relinquishing any of their manhood or the things for which they stand and think are right."

Rampant Suffering Feared "But in matters of this kind, and in the American spirit, we feel that the time has arrived when each side should waver, and like men who differ in opinion, go into conference and settle this controversy and thereby relieve the suffering that has started and will become more rampant if this controversy continues any length of time."

"We further appeal to the representatives of both sides to immediately contact each other, whereby the results outlined above, may be obtained."

struck him in the face with his fist without provocation in a Baltimore street cafe. He appeared in court with twelve stitches in a cut over his left eye, and four stitches in a wound under the eye.

Magistrate Perdue said he ordered Cavanaugh to buy Goodrich's new suit of clothes because the one he was wearing the night of the assault was ruined by blood stains.

Following his arrest July 7, Cavanaugh was committed to thirty days in jail when he was tried in Police court on a disorderly conduct charge. He was arrested a second time on an assault warrant sworn out by Goodrich.

Cavanaugh was arrested by Officers Edward B. Wilson and Walter P. Crabtree.

The back-to-work "Committee of 115" under fire from the union as a company-sponsored move, came out in the open last night with the name of its chairman.

The chairman and leader of the movement, according to the advertisement ordered by the "Committee" in today's News, is Richard Joyce, Cumberland resident Celanese worker.

It was learned on good authority last night that Joyce called upon National Labor Relations Board representatives late yesterday and told them that he and other workers were promoting the "Committee" on their own initiative.

NLRB Keeps Watch

The NLRB is represented here now by M. K. O'Sullivan, field examiner, and Board Attorney Charles Y. Latimer. They are staying at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

Meanwhile, Mary Ellen Wolford and Elizabeth Stanforth, two of the eight young women who called on Mayor Harry Irvine Wednesday and came out in the open with their back-to-work ideas, announced they had contacted the "Committee of 115" and found it a legitimate back-to-work move free from company direction. They have joined the committee.

Union Files Charge With Labor Board

A formal charge that the Celanese Corporation of America is fostering the "Committee of 115" yesterday was filed with the National Labor Relations Board, Herbert Payne, director of the rayon division of the Textile Workers Union, announced last night.

The charge was based on the 8-1 section of the act with the union alleging that the company is back of the recently organized back-to-work committee, Payne said.

Payne stated last night that the formal charge was filed yesterday afternoon with a representative of the NLRB in Cumberland.

He declared that the charge would be amended today to include an alleged violation of the 8-5 section of the act.

The 8-5 section concerns the "refusal of a company to bargain collectively and in good faith with the union."

Judge Orders Cafe Brawler To Buy His Bloody Victim Brand New Suit

"Leave Cumberland and Allegheny county," Magistrate Frank A. Perdue told a 30-year-old local resident when he was arraigned yesterday in Trial Magistrates court on a charge of assaulting a 74-year-old man.

Joseph Cavanaugh, of 176 Baltimore street, was accused of beating more Leroy Goodrich, of Glenn street, the late night of July 7. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Cavanaugh was sentenced to three months in the Maryland House of Correction, but Magistrate Perdue suspended the sentence for a period of one year. He was ordered to pay the costs of the court, buy Goodrich a new suit and pay his doctor bill, and leave the county.

Paging F.D.R.--Romney Turns Back To Good Old Horse and Buggy Days

The World of Tomorrow will be forgotten for a hilarious return to the World of Yesterday over in Romney, W. Va., tomorrow.

The occasion is the big two-day Home Coming and Firemen's Jubilee, which gets under way today.

Featured in the parade which starts from the public school grounds at 1 p. m. tomorrow will be, according to Publicity Chairman G. R. Park and Program Chairman W. C. Levens, some fifty horse-drawn vehicles, including Conestoga wagons, surreys, phaetons, "courting" buggies, and market wagons.

Also scheduled to appear are a couple of country doctors and two old-time Circuit-riding preachers, all on horseback as they were in the days when they carried pills and the Gospel to the people of the mountains.

An ox team is also slated to walk in the parade pulling a plow or a sled.

There will also be commercial, historical and educational floats, and five bands. A concert and Wild West show are on the program for Saturday night.

According to the publicity there will be "No Lotteries, No Humbug, No Gambling and No Political Speeches."

Publicity Chairman Park invites the public to visit Romney and the South Branch valley, revel in the mountain scenery, visit "some of the finest apple and peach orchards that grow" and see the herds of sleek cattle "that furnish the best beefsteak ever fried in a skillet and the fat hogs that produce the best of country cured hams."

Even the Indians are welcome. Says the program: "If perchance the descendants of Cornstalk, Kill Buck, and any of the other aborigines should conclude to mingle with us, we bid them a hearty welcome."

but they will be advised that the names Vapatomaka and Cohonagouton have been supplanted by "South Branch" and "Potomac."
